Australian Cyclone Aid Drunk Away

DARWIN (Reuter) — The mayor of Darwin, the northern Australian city devastated by a cyclone on Christmas Day, 1974, said Sunday that much of the $8.5 million raised internationally for the victims has either been gambled away or spent on drink.

"I know that's a hard and nasty thing to say to people who have given money — but those are the facts," said Mayor Ella Stack, deputy chairman of the now-defunct Cyclone Tracey Relief Fund.

She said much of the money paid in direct grants to Darwin residents went to persons who were not in real need, and that "some people cheated; some people gave false names."

Residents of areas ranging from Westwood to Montebello as well as workers in downtown Los Angeles felt it, however.

AUDITOR'S REPORT SCATHING

Ottawa Spending 'Out of Control'

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government spending is sliding completely out of control and a chief financial officer should be appointed as a first step toward restoring stability, Auditor-General J.J. Macdonell said Monday.

This year's report by Parliament's spending watchdog is a scathing indictment about government spending controls. It is part of a continuing review of spending controls initiated in 1974.

"I am deeply concerned that, on the evidence of the two-year examination . . . Parliament— and indeed the government— has lost or is close to losing effective control of the public purse," Mr. Macdonell says in the opening paragraph of his 630-page report tabled in the Commons by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald.

The government, in an apparent effort to soften the stinging criticism of the report, immediately announced the appointment of a royal commission to study ways of making the public service more accountable for its handling of taxpayers' money.

Mr. Macdonell calls current financial management practices "grossly inadequate" and says the situation now has become "critically serious." It will continue so without immediate remedial action, he says.

He suggests that the current situation has developed because of non-implementation of recommendations made in 1962 by the Glassco Commission to strengthen controls over spending.

"Control over public funds deteriorating for at least the last 15 years," he says. This covers the period beginning with the government of Progressive Conservative John Diefenbaker and including six Liberal governments— three of the late Lester Pearson and three of Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Mr. Macdonell's key recommendation is for a chief financial officer, preferably called the comptroller general of Canada, with the same status as a deputy minister and reporting to the president of the treasury board. This individual—highly qualified and recognized as such by the government, accounting bodies and the auditor-general —would create a program for restoring effective spending control.

The auditor-general's report contains the usual examples of government waste and mismanagement, including $828,000 for the purchase and refitting of a ship that was declared unfit for navigation. But the ever-all indictment of spending controls overshadowed these.

A heavy turnout of voters in Saturday's municipal elections was a mixed blessing for some veteran local politicians in B.C.

Among the casualties on Vancouver Island was Kay Grouhel, mayor of Ladymith, who had her hope for re-election to a seventh term dashed by former alderman Robert Wilson Stuart.

Also, Ken Forde, trying for his seventh term as mayor of Campbell River, was defeated by Tom Barnett, former New Democratic Party MP.

Another Island mayor defeated was Gerry Furney of Port McNeil. He lost by one vote to Mas Nishiyama.

These were three of the 24 mayoralty seats up for grabs in a so-called off-year election.

However, ignoring the record books, 42 per cent of the eligible B.C. voters turned out. The vote during off-year balloting is usually below 40 per cent.

Veteran Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney won easy re-election and in an interesting aldermanic race in Duncan, Dennis Alphonse, former Cowichan band chief, tied for second and won one of three seats.

The heavy turnout at the polls may have been due to the generally sunny skies or to a change in Section 80a of the Municipal Act.

The amendment, in effect for the first time this election, permits those not on the voters list to go to a poll, swear they are valid voters, and cast ballots.

In Massett on the Queen Charlotte Islands, section 80a was seen as the cause of a voting peculiarity in which there were 620 votes cast although there were only 410 registered voters.

Included in the list of veteran incumbents who lost favor with the electorate was Ron Andrews, chairman of the Greater Vancouver Regional District. He was upset in a bid for a sixth term as mayor of North Vancouver district by Ald. Don Bell.

Mayor Ceal Tingley, longtime mayor of the central interior town of Quesnel, ran last in a three-man race that was won by John Panagrot.

Stay of Prosecution Infuriates Indians

Times News Services

VANDERHOOF — Stoney Creek Indians have asked Attorney-General Garde Gardom to lift a stay of proceedings against the prosecution of a driver whose car hit and killed a pregnant Indian woman.

The stay is "almost as disturbing as the accident itself" the Stoney Creek Indian Homemakers Association said.

Regional Crown counsel Arthur Cook entered the stay Thursday on a charge of criminal negligence against Rickhard Redekop, 22, of Vanderhoof, whose car hit and killed Coreen Thomas July 3. The charge had been laid by Miss Thomas's father.

A coroner's jury found the death accidental but said Redekop was negligent because he drove too fast through a crowd of people.

"Cook, by taking the action he did with no consultation with the complainant (Thomas), with any of the people of Stoney Creek or with the Thomas family lawyer, appears to be telling us that Indians are still second-class citizens who cannot expect justice in white man's courts," said Helen Jones, secretary of the Stoney Creek Indian Homemakers' Association.

Miss Jones asked Gardom to instruct the prosecutor to reverse his decision.

She made her letter public after a meeting of about 60 Indians and whites at this central interior community of 2,000 was told Saturday by the British Columbia Indian Homemakers' Association that it was very upset about the stay of proceedings.

Barbara Kobierski of Vancouver, representing the homemakers' association, told the meeting the Indians would like to see justice applied to them also.

The meeting was arranged by the homemakers assocation to discuss problems existing between native and white cultures.

OTTAWA SILENT ON TEST

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Ottawa's silence over the results of atmospheric tests to determine the presence of radioactive particles in the wake of last week's Chinese nuclear explosion has been rapped by a spokesman for Environment Canada here.

British Columbians could die from the effect of radioactive fallout before they knew what was hitting them, he claimed.

"We have been taking daily filter samples for the health department in Ottawa but they never let us know what the results are," he added.

A spokesman for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said there have been no significant increases in radiation readings and that increases that were noted were not serious.

The readings were made as a huge cloud of radioactive debris billowed across the U.S. after crossing the Pacific Ocean following the explosion.

The northern boundary of the radiation cloud extended to central British Columbia.

3-Year Contract For Vic Press

Victoria Press Ltd. and five newspaper unions have reached agreement on a three-year contract retroactive to Dec. 1, 1975.

The employees had been working under an interim contract covering the seven-month period between Dec. 1, 1975 and June 30, 1976.

Agreement was reached not to have any increase in salary during that period and so the salary provisions of the new agreement are retroactive to July 1, 1976.

The salary increases are 8 per cent in the first year, 12 per cent in the second, in three stages, and two per cent in the final year.

For those in the Newspaper Guild the key classification rate after five years retroactive to July 1, is $341.37, an increase over the existing rate of $316.08.

The other increases are $355.02, Dec. 1; $369.22, July 1, 1977; $383.99, Dec. 1, 1977, and $391.67 on July 1, 1978.

The rates for journeyman in the craft unions are a couple of dollars less.

Bridget Petersen, president of the Victoria Newspaper Guild, said today the guild members voted 96 per cent in favor of ratification.

She said there was also a good majority in support from the other unions — the International Typographical Union, mailers, pressmen and stereotypers unions.

"We feel it is the best possible contract in light of the company's financial position and in light of the Anti-Inflation Board guidelines," Petersen said.

Company general-manager Jack Melville said he was pleased the negotiations were resolved.

He said he doesn't foresee any problems with the AIB and the company will proceed with the wage increases without waiting for a ruling from the federal body.

Petersen said there is some concern about the 8 per cent increase in the second year but added the AIB may approve it in light of the unions' agreement to relax some of the restrictive technological change language.

More fighting broke out after the match ended in a 1-1 tie. Enraged fans tried to tip over police cars and pelted buses with bricks.

Chiclet Plant Explodes

NEW YORK (AP) — A 34-year-old Brooklyn man, injured Sunday when an explosion and fire ripped through the American Chiclet gum factory in the borough of Queens, died in hospital today.

Hospital officials said Samuel Aeyekum, one of 55 workers injured in the blast, died from burns to 95 per cent of his body.

The explosion ripped through four floors of the building, spewing steel, concrete and molten gum into the street.

One fireman on the scene said it was a miracle that none of the 150 people working the all-night shift was killed immediately by the blast early Sunday. Witnesses said the force of the explosion hurled some of the victims to the street.

About 25 persons were burned severely.

"It was really horrible; I saw men with their clothing and skin burned off," said Chris Boggio, 19, a helper at the plant. "The blast threw me clean across the room."

The aroma of spearmint filled the air, and hot gum stuck to the boots of firemen battling the blaze.

Fire marshals, sifting through the debris in the six-storey brick structure in the Long Island City section of Queens, said a stray spark may have ignited combustible dust, causing the blast.

Only 11% Favor Separate Quebec—Poll

Times News Services

The number of Quebecers who favor separation has declined from 18 per cent before last Monday's election which brought the Parti Quebecois to power to just 11 per cent.

The decline was noted by two McGill University professors in polls conducted for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The two sociologists made their first sampling of 1,500 representative voters throughout that province midway through the election campaign and the second sampling of the same people Wednesday and Friday of last week.

One of the two, Professor Maurice Pinard, said he feels the victory by the separatist Parti Quebecois in the Nov. 15 election may have reduced radical sentiment, if only temporarily.

The Parti Quebecois received 41 per cent of the popular vote to win 69 seats in the 110-seat Quebec Assembly.

In the poll, 1,530 persons throughout Quebec were telephoned at random and 1,088 provided responses.

The CBC, which will broadcast the poll tonight on its News Magazine program, says the poll is the first scientific sampling of public opinion within Quebec since the election.

Meanwhile, federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Sunday that it would be better to break up the country than to favor Quebec with special status within the federal system.

For the federal government to give one province a special status is not realistic, he said.

In a transcript of a radio interview broadcast on the CBC program Sunday Morning, Lalonde said Parliament must remain committed to a system whereby Quebec MPs have no more power to legislate than members from other regions of Canada.

A diversion from that system, he said, "would be the first step towards complete separation."

In Montreal, Premier-elect Rene Levesque said the Quebec national assembly will meet before Christmas to adopt a supplementary provincial budget and expedite some urgent matters.

He made the announcement after a weekend caucus meeting.

NUCLEAR REACTOR SENT TO QUEBEC

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's first commercial nuclear reactor core, manufactured by Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd., was shipped by barge this weekend to Hydro-Quebec's Gentilly 2 nuclear power station near Trois-Rivieres, 70 miles up the St. Lawrence River.

The station is to produce about 600 megawatts of electricity, enough power to light up a city of 300,000 people, Dominion Bridge said in a statement.

The core, technically known as a calandria vessel, weighs 300 tons and measures approximately 30 feet in diameter. It took three years to build and is the first of five the company has on order.

Precision work "to within a few thousandths of an inch" was needed to achieve the accuracy required for the positioning of 380 fuel channel assemblies on the core, the company said.

Heavy B.C. Turnout

And incumbent Al Thompson, a director of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, ran second to Michael Latta in a four-man race for the mayor's chair in the south-central city of Kamloops.

New Westminster Mayor Muni Evers, past president of the UBCM, easily won re-election, handily defeating environmentalist Dorothy Beach and businessman Joe McCarthy by a margin of almost three-to-one.

Also, Pat Brennan reemerged on the municipal scene, scoring an easy victory over David Stewart who was seeking his second term as mayor of Squamish, about 45 miles north of Vancouver.

Brennan, is a former mayor of Squamish and former member of the Pacific National Exhibitionr Board of Directors.

Former NDP MLA Harold Steves, defeated in the Dec. 11 provincial general election, made a comeback by topping the polls in the aldermanic race in Richmond.

But another former NDP MLA and cabinet minister, Carl Liden, failed by six votes to win a council seat in Delta. A recount may be held.

On money questions, the voters indicated a desire for more fiscal restraint and most of the $24.7 million in by-laws and referenda went down to defeat.

Eleven incumbent mayors were returned by acclamation when nominations closed Oct. 25.

There were about 750,000 eligible voters deciding which of 1,230 candidates should fill the mayor's chairs, 310 aldermanic vacancies and 213 school trustee positions.

247,000 Acres in Mexico Turned Over to Peasants

CIUDAD OBREGON, Mexico (WP) — In one of his fiercest confrontations with the conservative establishment, President Luis Echeverria has ordered appropriation of vast holdings in Mexico's most fertile valley on behalf of landless peons and migrant workers.

Even as government officials distributed copies of the presidential enabling decrees, peasant leaders acting on orders from the government moved almost 24,000 people onto lands staked out for the last eight days.

As a result, the title 247,000 acres of agricultural and grazing land, owned by 74 families, have now been handed over to 8,000 peasant families.

There is to be no compensation, as the owners were found to be holding the land illegally.

The expropriation comes just days before the Mexican president ends his six-year-term, during which he has often promised to improve the lot of Mexico's 28 million peasants and has committed himself to providing plots to the millions of landless.

The fact that Echeverria adopted this and other important economic and political measures so close to the end of his term has caused much uncertainty in Mexico.

Outgoing presidents normally cede power gradually to their successor in their final months. Echeverria has proved to be an unusually strong lame duck.

In recent months he has even devalued the peso twice — the first times since 1954.

Outside this city, in the sweeping Yaqui Valley which stretches from the Pacific coast to the Sierra Madre mountains, the peasants have moved their ramshackle camps onto the freshly stilled earth they now own.

They have planted the red flags of their movement and women are heating tortillas and soup on simple log fires in the burning sun.

"I have been working other people's land since I was 8, and I can't believe I have my own now," said Manuel Gutierrez, 50, who with 68 others had been camping out on the bank of an irrigation canal for more than a week.

This enormous valley provides Mexico with almost half of its wheat and cotton and is considered one of Mexico's two most productive agricultural zones. The rush now is to safeguard the multi-million-dollar winter harvest.

Meanwhile, Conservative businessmen and landowners have laid plans for a nationwide strike to protest the hand over.

In this town of 250,000 some 350 miles south of the U.S. border, representatives of business groups co-ordinating the strike said they have received support from 30 towns and cities, including the industrial centres of Monterrey, Puebla and Guadalajara.

The strike is to begin Wednesday, one week before the new president, Jose Lopez Portillo, is to take over from Echeverria.

★ EXCHANGE SUSPENDED

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican central bank suspended the sale and purchase of all foreign currencies and gold today after an apparent run on dollars by Mexicans worried about their country's economic future.

After being pegged for 22 years at 12.50 to the U.S. dollar, the peso has lost about half its value since Aug. 22 when President Luis Echeverria's administration allowed it to float to its own level on international money markets.

It was trading at about 24 to the dollar Friday in Mexico and was quoted at a range of 27 to 30 in New York today.

The devaluation and rumors of possible nationalization of private Mexican banks are thought to have set off a flurry of dollar purchases by Mexicans concerned about inflation and econofic insecurity.

The Banco de Mexico said "excessive conversions" of pesos into foreign currency has created "disorderly situations that have seriously altered the exchange market."

"Beginning Nov. 22 and until further notice, credit institutions will abstain from buying and selling foreign money and gold," the bank said. However, dollars would still be accepted for debts to banks and other financial institutions.

At Benito Juarez International Airport outside Mexico City, banks were refusing to sell pesos to tourists. A black market operation cropped up, and some tourists bought pesos at 26 to a dollar, one newspaper reported.

Cash Flow Puts Loan In Jeopardy

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's domestic money supply, a key factor in the country's battle with inflation, is still rising higher than the target set by the Labor government, the Bank of England disclosed today.

Despite heavy restrictions on credit, the amount of money in circulation jumped 1¼ per cent in the month of mid-October.

The government's aim has been to hold money supply growth to 12 per cent in the financial year beginning last April.

But with half the year gone, money in circulation already has increased 8¾ per cent.

Tight money control is believed to be one of the factors on which inspectors from the International Monetary Fund are insisting as a condition for a $3.9-billion loan being sought by Britain.

Glazier Takes Lead In Regional Vote

The race for the two regional director seats in Saturday's elections was complicated by the fact the directors must be sitting aldermen.

Murray Glazier topped the polls and was sent back to board, but Ald. Bob Ellis, who placed second in the regional district race and William McElroy who was third, did not win board seats because they were not elected to council.

Mike Young automatically holds the third seat for another year.

Fourth place finisher Ron McKenzie won the second seat by default. McKenzie has one year left to serve on his current term.

Ann Tarasoff and Joe Richards trailed.

The only other race for a regional district seat was in Central Saanich where Dave Hill defeated Frank Waring in a battle for the seat vacated by D. J. MacLaurin.

Waring is a sitting alderman with one year left on his term, Hill topped the aldermanic polls in Central Saanich.

In Oak Bay, Shirley Dowell was the only candidate and since she was re-elected to council, automatically goes to the regional board. She replaces John Goult who did not seek re-election.

Sidney will not decide its regional director until the by-election for mayor Dec. 11 caused by the mid-term resignation of Mayor Peter Malcolm. Malcolm is also the current regional director for Sidney.

In North Saanich, George Westwood was the only candidate. He topped the aldermanic polls so goes to the regional board replacing G. O. Cumpston who did not seek re-election.

Saanich's three seats and Esquimat's one seat on the board will all be contested next year.

None of the seven directors representing the non-incorporated electoral areas faced elections this year.

OBITUARIES BACKING EXPLOSION RUMORS

MOSCOW (AFP) — Obituary notices in the newspaper Soviet Estonia a ppear to confirm reports that an explosion or accident occurred in a Soviet Baltic port late last month.

Death notices have been published for about 30 persons between Oct. 26 and Nov. 16, giving the cause as "sudden death" — a phrase usually indicating a catastrophe or serious accident in the Soviet Union.

Ten of the victims came from a factory whose name and activities were not mentioned, six from the port of Tallinn in the Gulf of Finland and three from KGB security services in the port.

The rest were men who are believed to have been members of the Communist party or held government positions.

Soviet officials have refused to comment on a report by the Swedish daily newspaper Expressen, that a nuclear explosion occurred in a Soviet naval base in Estonia on Oct. 25, killing more than 40 persons.

Student Pilot Dies in Smash

CASTLEGAR (CP) — Peter Arthur Methum, a 24-year-old student pilot from Nelson, was killed Saturday in the crash of a light, single-engine plane between Nelson and Castlegar.

Police said he was practising solo flying and was the only person aboard the Cessna 173 when it crashed in mountainous terrain near Krestova. The plane was owned by Ad Astra Aviation of Castlegar.

RCMP and officials of the ministry of transport are investigating the crash. An inquest has been ordered but no date has been set.

John Turner Again

Despite John Turner's disclaimer that his latest speech was off the cuff and off the record its substance was an open declaration of his aspirations to lead the Liberal party and therefore the government of Canada. When a person of Turner's political stature blames federal policies for encouraging Quebecers to elect a separatist government, advocates an immediate end to wage and price controls, and says Canada has reached the bottom of the line as a credit risk in other countries, he is throwing down the gauntlet.

Inevitably, in the wake of Quebec's election internal Liberal grumblings against Pierre Elliot Trudeau will surface. Already a minor Liberal backbencher from Quebec is suggesting it's time to decide on whether to replace Trudeau. More than a year ago 20 per cent of the delegates at the annual Liberal convention endorsed a leadership review. Today the pressure is intense, and Turner is the obvious choice for the floundering Liberals. But there is something sleazy about a man who leaves the battle at midpoint and then rides down from the hills to shoot the wounded as the dust is settling. Turner left the cabinet at a difficult time without bothering to give a public explanation. Now he wants to ride back and be embraced as the prime minister.

At this critical time in Canada's history perhaps we can't afford the luxury of decency, honor and political morality in national life. The first priority is to keep the country together, maintain Confederation and ensure a Canadian future. In his Toronto speech Turner urged Canadians to win the hearts and minds of Quebecers during the coming months and asked for greater assurance of language rights both inside and outside of Quebec.

Certainly Turner could present a more persuasive argument than Trudeau to Westerners about the continued need to woo Quebec. Turner is also the darling of the corporate community which in fact controls both major political parties through its financial machinations.

The enmity between Quebec's Rene Levesque and Trudeau goes back a decade. Can these two men negotiate a Canadian compromise together? And since the argument is basically between French- and English-Canadians it is logical that an Anglophone would debate with a francophone.

These thoughts are not an endorsation of John Turner, but they are some of the arguments Canadians will be faced with in the coming months. Pierre Trudeau is still prime minister of Canada. Whatever his faults, he is dedicated to keeping this country together. Nor did he throw up his hands and leave the fight when the going was rough, as did Turner.

Trudeau deserves time to sort out his response to this national contretemps. The Liberals should not panic and leave a man who has served them so well these past eight years for a new white knight. As for John Turner, it's time he quit pussyfooting around the podiums of comfortable clubs. If he's going to fight for the Liberal leadership, he should have the decency to do it in the light of day. Enough negative spectres already lurk in the Canadian gloom these days.

MAURICE WESTERN

Where the Legalities End

OTTAWA — The premier-elect of Quebec has been using honeyed words since the late hours of Monday a week ago to some effect. As the business-as-usual spirit reasserts itself, other leaders are beginning to emphasize those parts of the Levesque program which best accord with the post-election message that all will be well in our fortunate land.

This ignores some obvious but less reassuring implications of the program.

Meanwhile, in Ottawa Prime Minister Trudeau has promised to co-operate with Levesque if he follows "the letter and the spirit of the Canadian constitution." He has also said that the federal government is dedicated to "an inseparable Canada, a Canada which is indivisible." His position is that he will not negotiate any form of separatism with any province.

The implications of these statements also remain unexplored. For the present at least, the various parties in parliament appear to be of one mind in saying as little as possible about Quebec.

No Opting OUt

Levesque has exerted himself to persuade everyone that nothing, apart from good social democratic works, is to be expected until the referendum. Indeed, nothing is to happen then if the vote favors the continuance of Confederation. Even the legislative action specified in the PQ program may be sidetracked in favor of a simple resolution. The separatist government will, of course, seek to open negotiations with Ottawa but, as Levesque conceded in his Foreign Affairs article, this venture is unlikely to lead anywhere.

Less has been said about another paragraph in the platform which is bound to be taken seriously by a party "totally dedicated to political independence." This reads:

"Consequently, a Parti Quebecois government commits itself to:

"In the event that it must proceed unilaterally, take over methodically the exercise of all the powers of a sovereign state, assuring itself beforehand of the support of Quebecers by a means of a referendum."

Levesque's view is clear — the referendum, if it yields an affirmative note, will clothe in legitimacy his proposed actions. In his Foreign Affairs article of 1974, he finds a precedent in reverse for this procedure.

"Newfoundland was consulted in 1948-49 about whether or not to opt in. So why not about opting out."

The fact is that our constitution makes no provision for opting out, by referendum or otherwise. This is scarcely surprising since the Nova Scotians in 1867 were dragged into Confederaion, kicking and screaming. An election in the province, which amounted to a referendum, returned a single confederate.

The incident had constitutional significance because an appeal to London established the principle repeatedly confirmed that the British parliament will respond only to an address from the Canadian parliament.

In his reference to Newfoundland, Levesque conveniently overlooks articles 146 and 147 of the British North America Act which provided for the admission of that colony and of Prince Edward Island by the procedure of addresses from the legislatures and parliament.

The implications of Trudeau's statements seem plain enough. If Canada is indivisible, it cannot be divided; certainly not by a procedure which is not recognized by the constitution. Further, since the federal government has "only one mandate . . . to govern the whole country, including Quebec," it will be duty bound in certain circumstances to employ the constitutional weapon which it, rather unwillingly, possesses—disallowance.

There is a general, although perhaps unwise, reluctance to recognize that disallowance may be required before Levesque reaches the referendum stage. Some participants in a CBC program last Tuesday evening drew reassurance from statements of the premier-elect indicating that constitutional changes would not be effected in a premature and piecemeal fashion.

But this ignores two rather important points. Levesque faces very difficult problems and he will naturally wish to employ all possible powers in dealing with them. As a somewhat imperious minister in the Lesage government in Quebec, he showed great impatience with constitutional restraints and was embroiled in angry quarrels with Ottawa ministers, notably Arthur Laing.

What is or is not constitutional is often a matter of opinion until there has been a judicial decision. Alberta premier William Aberhart in the 1930s did not propose to violate the Canadian constitution. He managed to persuade himself and most Albertans that his Social Credit laws were within the powers of the province. He was mistaken, as the courts found. Since time is required to settle cases, the federal government averted damage in the interval by striking down the objectionable legislation. This may again become necessary.

Think Unthinkable

Unfortunately, the reserve powers are no answer to the ultimate question posed by the PQ program. For, if the Quebec government, on the strength of referendum results, proceeds "unilaterally," it will be repudiating the constitution. The PQ ministers, overcoming the reluctance of earlier years, are now prepared to take the oath, declaring their allegiance to the Queen and to uphold the constitution, which they dismiss as a "form." Their platform suggests that they regard the constitution in much the same light.

Where legality ends, revolution begins. This point is being studiously ignored by spokesmen of all parties on the federal side and by Levesque on the other. The unmentionable question, by general agreement, is: What then?

There may be present wisdom in avoiding the hypothetical. We have no reason to doubt, however, that the new Quebec premier takes his mission very seriously. If his ideas carry conviction — not a remote possibility — the unmentionable may have to be asked and answered in an unhappy hour for the country.

Take a Memo, Ms. McTeer

To: Michael Meighen, President, Progressive Conservative party.

From: Joe Clark, Party Leader.

It's about our fund-raising brochure, Mike. You know, the one that goes out in bulk mailings soliciting donations to our PC Canada Fund, appealing to Canadians to participate in our democratic system through the national pastime, the tax deduction?

I know it's been pulling in a lot of money lately, but for goodness' sake can't we do something about the pictures in it? Gerald Ford is still president of the U.S., I know, but a picture of me sitting in the White House side by side with Gerry is, shall I say, a teensy bit inappropriate considering what happened on Nov. 2.

Decision for action: call Jimmy Carter and ask if we might get together some day soon for a spontaneous picture session. And get a better photographer than the one who took the Ford picture. He showed us sitting so far apart we had to cut out Ford and paste him on about an inch closer to me so we could fit the thing into the brochure.

My final question: I've read the thing several times, but I can't make head or tail out of the title on the front page. Just what the heck does it mean? "In 1968, Canada was a supermarket. Today, it has become a waiting room." And those pictures of a supermarket and a waiting room, empty, no people. I know we're trying to suggest that the Liberals are a party of empty rooms, empty dreams (heh, heh, a little wit there, Mike) but they're so darn gloomy. Can't we get a picture of a cheery waiting room?

We want to think positive, Mike, not turn off the voters with gloomy snapshots of anonymous hallways like something out of downtown Edmonton.

Might I suggest a cheerful family shot of me and Maureen and baby Catherine? By the way, have you ordered your eight-by-10 glossy yet? I still have a number left, and they're only . . .

How Japanese Do It in UK

BRIDGEND, Wales — It has taken a group of dynamic Japanese businessmen to prove again to British industry that different social attitudes could ease some of the problems that bedevil British industrial relations.

Predictably, not much interest is being shown by British managers in how the Japanese are achieving something they themselves would like — industrial peace. This is because of the unfortunage belief of many British managers that they have nothing to learn from "foreigners."

But what has been happening at a small electronics assembly factory just outside this south Wales market town shows that it is possible for a plant to be operated in Britian without the notorious "bloodyminded" reaction of workers to every management initiative.

Sony Television of Japan set up a plant here in 1973, to assemble television sets from parts imported from Japan and to sell the products in the British and European markets.

The attractions of the location were eligibility for development area benefits and proximity to a major expressway and the new 125 m.p.h. rail link with London. Wages in the area are lower than in some parts of Britain and Sony did not pay above the average.

Japanese management methods don't inspire UK industry.

Only One Union

Since setting up, though, Sony has had no serious industrial dispute and puts this down to its management methods.

Before hiring a single workers: the company insisted that it would deal with only one union for all employees. Agreement was reached that the Amalgamated Union of Engineering Workers would be the union and the company thus avoided the chronic inter-union disputes that do so much damage throughout industry, with managments often caught innocently in the middle.

When the work force moved into the low-slung modern buildings, they found the Japanese had torn down the private offices built for managers. All managers worked in an open space close to the factory floor.

In the canteen, the partitioning was again pulled down so that managers and workers could eat the same food together, with everyone standing in line and queue-jumping forbidden.

Instead of workers wearing a different outfit from managers, the company supplied all staff with blue linen jackets with the company name on the top pocket.

Managers were ordered to mingle socially with their staff and ensure employees called them by their first names. After work, groups of managers and workers went together to local pubs to drink and talk and numerous parties and dances and sports contests were held in which managers and workers joined.

Mrs. Mary Peel, who runs the Pied Piper Pub close to the factory, says the "Sony bunch" are a happy, mixed crowd with no class barriers.

"When the Japanese and British managers come in here with the workers they drink pints and they drink in the same place as the workers.

"Managers of other companies around here drink gin and tonic in the lounge bar while their workers drink beer in the public bar, if they drink in the same pub at all, which is rare. These other British managers think the Sony managers are either daft or red revolutionaries."

Mrs. Dolly Jones, union chief shop steward at the plant, says the hampers the company gives all employees at Christmas are an extra touch "that is just unknown in British companies these days.

"It is a happy plant. Everyone is on first-name terms — I am known as Dolly — and everyone eats the same food in the canteen. There is no jealousy or superiority and that's why we have no strikes here."

Hiroshi Okochi, Sony's European director, recently described his company's Bridgend methods at a seminar of Japanese businessmen in Tokyo. He said the methods had resulted in a total absence of what the Japanese call "eikoku byo," the British disease of militancy and disgruntlement.

The most disappointing aspect of the experiment remains the disinterest of other British companies. Bridgend is being ignored in the same way that the Cammel Laird shipbuilders were after Canadian Graham Day came in as chief executive and achieved great labor relations success with radical management methods.

Drink Together

He gave up a job as assistant general solicitor of Canadian Pacific to take over the dying shipyard and turned it round to profitability, partly by sensible financial and production system controls. But he also won over the skilled work force by doing what Cammell Laird directors never did — talking directly to workers. He also cut out free lunches for managers, closed down exclusive managers' dining rooms and made everyone eat the same food in the same canteen and carry his own tray.

If the government's bill to nationalize the shipbuilding and aircraft industries goes through, he is a hot tip to become the deputy boss of the new state corporation.

British industry, meanwhile, will grandly ignore the Canadian and Japanese examples and carry on as before.

Arms Escalation

I am writing this letter in regard to the arms race. I have recently attended a meeting at which I heard Dr. William Epstein, a Canadian who headed up the UN disarmament commission for many years, and through his talk, as well as the arms race fact sheet I have, and my membership in the World Federalists of Canada, I believe that one of the greatest threats to society today is the peacetime escalation of the arms race, and with this escalation comes great inflationary effects and a tremendous waste of valuable resources, resources which if put to peaceful use could help solve many of man's problems instead of creating more of them.

I suggest that the Canadian government be encouraged to promote the ideals of World Federalism, which stands for world peace through world law, and I hope that other people besides myself will write to the prime minister, minister of national defence, and their MP and say just this before it is too late and a major war grows from any of the local wars around the world. — Ian A. Cox, 2680 Macdonald Drive.

Tactless Man

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm must surely win the award for the most untactful man of the year, to say the least.

First came his accusation that rest homes were keeping the elderly drugged! I believe this to be untrue in most cases. But even if it were true, life is at times so sad for the elderly that I would not begrudge them a few extra pills.

Now he expresses glee at the thought that Quebec may separate and B.C. will not have to pay welfare to Quebec transients. How very unkind! Could he give the public some pertinent figures to prove his statements? Is he aware that our poorer provinces, the maritimes, are also composed of countless French names — thousands of LeBlancs, for instance? And does it hurt B.C. more to pay welfare to a fellow Canadian than to say, a Chinese or an East Indian? It would be interesting to see a comparative statement covering Ontario, the maritimes and the prairies, as opposed to Quebec transients.

It is precisely this narrow and unkind outlook that has pushed Quebec into its present position.—A Working Canadian of French Origin.

Much-loved Ship

We urge that the now-idle ferry Queen of Surrey be used to start the proposed Tsawwassen-Kitimat ferry run, to help reduce or eliminate the chance that the Princess Marguerite will be replaced on the Seattle-Victoria run, and thus to help ensure continued operation of this very-loved ship on her traditional schedule.

We would also like to call your attention to the fact that two additional ferries to be idled by B.C. Ferries could be used in the summer to help increase auto-ferry capacity to Victoria.

1. The Sunshine Coast Queen, soon to be "bumped" on the Langdale run, could be operated Sidney-Anacortes opposite the Washington state ferry Kaleetan. The Sunshine Queen has a capacity of about 190 autos, and could make two daily round trips to Anacortes, increasing the number of one-way trips in each direction from two to four. We suggest that the B.C. Steamship Co. could take possession of the Sunshine and negotiate the necessary joint-traffic agreements with Washington state.

2. The ferry Langdale Queen, now idled with replacement of some hull plating, could be assigned to run opposite the Black Bell ferry Coho on the Victoria-Port Angeles run. The Langdale can carry about 90 autos, and might make up to four daily round trips to Port Angeles, where motorists this summer (including personal friends from California) were told upon arrival at the Black Ball dock that they would have a 24-hour wait for a ferry to Victoria if they drove aboard.

Again, the BCSS Co. might be the appropriate agency to take possession of the Langdale and formulate a joint-traffic agreement with Black Ball.

We are suggesting these possibilities to reduce the need for replacing the Princess Marguerite on the Seattle-Victoria run on the pretext that additional auto capacity to downtown Victoria area is needed. This capacity can be provided more economically and more efficiently (more round trips per day per ferry) as outlined above.—Glenn Lee, Princess Marguerite Committee, Seattle, Wash.

Note of Levity

I thought the premier was a bit hard on Mr. Vander Zalm, his admonition too severe and a shade pompous. After all, we have had to suffer more than somewhat in the last few years at the hands of Quebec and perhaps the prospect of a change to lighten the burden prompted Mr. Vander Zalm to utter his feelings of relief. He may have said what he said, with tongue in cheek, and a taint note of levity which gave us all a laugh and restored our sense of proportion. — Philip Saville, 515 Foul Bay Road.

Too Late For Trudeau To Play Lincoln Role

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — Is everyone calm and cool in English Canada? Good.

That's what all our leaders are suggesting to us. The prime minister is calm and so cool he's almost frigid.

Everyone is being asked to be responsible, expecially Mr. Levesque and his 69 members of the National Assembly.

Really, Rene, you can run Quebec but you understand, of course, that not only did you not get a mandate for independence, but most Quebeckers, indeed most of the million and a quarter who voted for your party, are against independence for Quebec.

It was a bit unfortunate for clarity on this matter of "independence" or "separation" for Quebec that Mr. Bourassa had a campaign at all, and that he had trenchant federalists with him like Bryce Mackasey. Why unfortunately? Because they did give the impression that the issue of independence was in abeyance. There was a moratorium on it until it could be presented to Quebeckers separately from a general election in the form of a referendum.

First, said Levesque, let us get rid of this bad government, replace it with some integrity, heart and competence — then the PQ will take the lead in putting the choice. Meantime, said Levesque, the federal system was here, Quebec in it, and as premier he would seek better terms from Ottawa, for example on the Olympic debt.

But Bourassa, Mackasey and Marchand, loudly and clearly, told Quebeckers this was all fake. Levesque was merely being what one national TV commentator called him late on election night "A Tricky Propagandist."

For the third election whirl since 1970 the Liberals made the issue of the election separatism.

They did, didn't they? Isn't that what you heard? That's what I heard.

Now our leaders in English Canada, and the PM too, are ignoring the Bourassa campaign and what both provincial and federal Liberals proclaimed in this Quebec election. They're saying that if Levesque is an "honest" man, he'll hold a fair referendum in two years, when, of course, the "independence" issue will be lost, overwhelmingly, because everybody knows that Quebeckers do not want independence.

What I'm trying to do by setting out what has happened in this way is to underline how far we can stretch to evade unpalatable realitites.

How the devil anyone can rationalize the Quebec election into something almost like an affirmation of one Canada, of everything being as it was before in the constitutional calm, boggles my mind. Trudeau, for example, insisting that merely a provincial government had been elected.

All about Trudeau was a shambles of what he was exalted to the prime ministership in 1968 to enforce — to keep Quebec in its place, a province like the others. His blood brothers of the Quebec Liberals smashed. His most cherished political friend, Jean Marchand, badly beaten — and not by a nonentity, but by the tough, bull-necked former senior civil servant Claude Morin, a man who has challenged the federal Liberal view of Canada for a decade.

At this late stage in the drama of the two nations, here when French-Canadian Quebeckers, at long last, have called their own bluff, and this after a bombardment of scare stories, Mr. Trudeau begins to use the word about Canada which might well have been used vigorously by federal Liberals in the mid-1960s when Gilles Gregoire became the first "separatist" MP.

The word "indivisible", the word that Lincoln used. Remember, in answer to the secessionists, Lincoln proclaimed a nation one and indivisible, that the Union must constitutionally defend and maintain itself.

We have had no prime minister, no national leader, in the past 15 years as French-Canadian nationalism surged, to say as Lincoln did — "The Union of these states is perpetual."

Lincoln said (and then acted to prove he meant it:) "that the government in Washington will constitutionally defend and maintain itself."

Trudeau, now, talks about maintaining the constitution.

Clearly he is determined not to preside as Canada as we know it is dissolved. But all these antics, given his rigidity and lost battles and current low repute, are likely to play into Levesque's hands. The latter, as yet, has not proved to be quite the King Canute that Trudeau has. Anyway, it is a little late, about eight years late, for Trudeau to play Lincoln.

Out of China's Upheaval, a Freer Life for the People

By JAY MATHEWS

HONK KONG — It began to dawn on one foreign diplomat what a change had come over China when a usually self-controlled official got politely drunk at a Peking banquet. "When I'm happy, I can drink a whole bottle," the Mao-jacketed cadre said, reaching for a flask of potent mao tai.

In the space of one tumultuous month, four of China's top six leaders have been arrested, the administration of its largest city, Shanghai, completely overhauled and the way opened for an enormous transformation in the lives of ordinary Chinese, from the books they can buy and the movies they can see to the sizes of their bank accounts and the marks on their children's report cards.

It is, in many respects, a victory for Chinese history. A few idealistic leaders, who apparently thought they could serve their own ambitions and at the same time end 2,000 years of rule by a well-educated elite, are now reportedly in solitary confinement. Their interrogaters are the bureaucrats they attempted to defeat.

For the time being, as Hua Kuo-feng moves to consolidate his hold on the world's most populous nation, the Chinese are likely to enjoy an era of good feeling. Hua and his fellow bureaucrats have already signaled that they will dismantle the more austere features of Mao Tse-tung's economic policy. Factory workers expect to see bonuses again for good work; peasants figure their private vegetable gardens and pigs are now safe from expropriation; the press has hinted at more movies and more foreign books.

But China's long-range political future is less certain. In an important sense, the events of the past month have revived the midnight arrest as a tool of Chinese politics. It has been a favorite device of Chinese leaders for centuries, but Mao often disdained it, preferring the slower, clumsier method of organizing media campaigns to build pressure against individuals or policies he opposed.

The walled-in villas of the Chungnanhai district, where most Peking leaders live, are full of men and women as ambitious as Hua or his defeated adversary, Mao's widow, Chiang Ching. Somewhere in China, for instance, perhaps also in Chungnanhai, lives the influential former Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, who now has a chance for a political comeback.

HUA
. . . consolidating

It is hard to believe, given the many personal vendettas that have soured Chinese political life over the past two decades, that Hua can avoid policy or personal clashes with some of those who helped him oust the radicals. And now he has set a precedent for grasping power through sudden, ruthless action.

The month's events have virtually destroyed the notion that China's politics was nothing more than a highminded debate over principle. Hua's coordinated effort to blacken the name of the four arrested radicals, whom his aides call the "Gang of Four," has provided a colorful portrait of raging personal animosity and conspiracy.

"We had an atmosphere at Chungnanhai," said one analyst, "that would have matched anything in the last days of the Empress Dowager," China's last powerful monarch and a personality the Chinese are now privately comparing to Chiang Ching.

Although probably exaggerated, the new official accounts of Chiang Ching's activities in the years and months before Mao's death indicate a woman absolutely confident that even in egalitarian China she had to be honored and obeyed.

"She was very fussy about clothing, food, quarters and means of travelling," according to an official account of Chiang's trip to Hainan Island. "She was not satisfied with the bed and bedsheets after they had been changed several times. She demanded that within the range of one kilometer from her residence there could be no noise from motor vehicles, poultry and dogs. Motor vehicles delivering things to her had to switch off their engines one kilometer away and then be pushed by more than 20, strong young militiamen. Even the service personnel had to walk on tiptoe when delivering her water and meals; there could not be the slightest sound."

Ironically, Chiang during that time was apparently spending her evenings screening dozens of Hollywood films brought to her covertly through Hong Kong. American researcher Roxane Witke, who interviewed Chiang in 1972, said her favorite movie was Gone With the Wind, its portrayal of the trials of Scarlett O'Hara matching Chiang's own view of a woman's difficulties making it in a man's world.

If movies can sometimes be taken as a measure of Chinese politics, there is one showing now on Chinese television that represents a cloud on Hua's horizon. The film is based on the wartime exploits of Teng Hsiao-ping, and its reappearance after some time out of sight seems in line with the softened attacks on Teng in the official press.

Many of the military officials who now surround Hua, including Peking commander Chen Hsi-lien, Canton commander Hsu Shih-yu and the navy commissar who has taken over as the mayor of Shanghai, Su Chen-hua, are all old colleagues of Teng from their days as fellow officers in the Second Field Army. Some analysts feel they are now lobying for Teng's return to a high party post.

But Teng, unlike Hua, is an arrogant, irascible figure who is unlikely to settle for a middle-level post. No one here knows what his relationship is with Hua, who took over as head of the Chinese government when Teng was purged by Mao earlier this year.

With Hua's debt to the army, which helped him arrest Chiang, analysts here are watching for some sign that he is moving to honor demands for more modern military equipment, more military training and perhaps negotiations with the Soviet Union to ease the strain of keeping a million troops on alert along the northern border. So far there is no sign of any of this.

Instead, the official press is full of hints of a new emphasis on the financial well-being of Chinese families. After months in which Chinese articles on the economy limited their praise to new production records by farms and factories, a story sent out Nov. 4 by the New China News Agency throws a spotlight on personal living standards:

"The average income of each commune member in Liangtsun (a part of Honan Province) in 1975 was 2½ times that of 1965 . . . Each household has grain reserves . . . The overwhelming majority of the families in the commune have bank deposits or savings in the credit co-operatives," the article said.

Another long New China News Agency article mentioned how many foreign books the current Chinese literary hero, Lu Hsun, translated before his death in 1936. Analysts take this as a sign that Chinese bookstores, which have offered few foreign works in recent years, may broaden their inventories.

Some foreigners in Peking have also seen wall posters in local universities suggesting that college students will soon be graded on the basis of tough examinations on subject matter rather than on their working class or peasant background and their participation in political campaigns.

All this would mean a return to the days of the early 1960s, when Mao was in eclipse and China had settled into a comfortable bureaucratic system of rules and regulations not unlike those of the Soviet Union. But there is no sign yet that this new situation is stable, and that China has rejected for good the dizzying policy changes that have hurt the economy and turned many Chinese into secret opportunists, changing their minds quickly with the political winds.

Now is a time in China that reminds historians of the days of Henry VIII of England and his successors, when the English church would in turn damn or embrace the Pope, and papist and antipapist bishops would change places as prisoners in the Tower of London.

"After a while, it was no longer something you felt in your heart," said one former Peking resident who came here after demonstrating as a Red Guard 10 years ago and weathering the subsequent political shifts. "I just got sick of it."

Peers Unite For Unity

By BERNARD NOSSITER

LONDON — A group of prominent peers has tried and failed to kill the first full-length study of Unity Mitford, the British aristocrat who worshipped Adolf Hitler.

The unremarkable duckling in a family filled with talented daughters, the 20-year-old Unity picked up the Fuehrer at a Munich cafe in 1935. That began a close if unconsummated relationship, which lasted until her unsuccessful attempt at suicide four years later.

A new biography by David Pryce-Jones, "Unity Mitford: A Quest," has touched off a furious campaign of suppression. It was led by two of Unity's brilliant sisters, Deborah, the Duchess of Devonshire, and Lady Diana Mosley, leader of Britain's fascist movement in the 1930s.

To put the book down, they enlisted some of the most resonant names in the kingdom. Among them are:

• Lord Harlech, a distant Mitford relation, British ambassador to Washington in the 1960s and prewar night companion of John Kennedy, the bachelor son of the U.S. ambassador.

• Lord Lambton, the Tory peer who lost his post as a junior defense minister under Prime Minister Edward Heath when a press photographer caught Lambton in bed with a pair of whores.

• Hugh Fraser, Tory Member of Parliament and another Kennedy family friend, whose wife, Lady Antonia, the historian, conducted one of last year's best publicized affairs with playwright Harold Pinter. Fraser was best man at Devonshire's wedding to Deborah Mitford.

Even Mrs. Ian Fleming, widow of the author of the James Bond books, got into the act. She wrote Pryce-Jones' publisher that he had no idea what trouble the book was stirring up. But at least she was less harsh than another titled lady, who insisted that Pryce-Jones had written the book only to be bought off, and that his anti-fascist views came from his Jewish mother.

Before the book came out last week, Jessica Mitford, Unity's leftist writer-sister, was the only family member to defend it. After reading galley proofs, she wrote Pryce-Jones simply: "I am mourning my sister."

Still another writing sister, novelist Nancy, with her sharp eye for aristocratic foibles, might have turned the whole affair into a farce. But that brilliant Mitford died three years ago.

Pryce-Jones, a successful 48-year-old novelist and journalist, is a slight man who is astonished at the fury he has brought down on his head. If anything, his biography is a sympathetic, understanding account of a twisted girl with an insatiable urge to shock.

His publisher, George Weidenfeld, is a newly created peer himself and one of Britain's most prominent Jews. Weidenfeld never hesitated over the book and told Pryce-Jones, "This is your tenth book for us and I've got confidence in you."

Lawyers for Sir Oswald Mosley threatened to enjoin the book's publication, claiming it misrepresented the Mitford family. The threat proved to be idle.

Various titled ladies, says Pryce-Jones, wrote or told him, "The heavens will open upon you," "This will do you no good," and "I am warning you." The late Sir John Heygate, who is distinguished chiefly for having run off with Evelyn Waugh's first wife, wrote Lady Diana Mosley in disappointment:

"I was under the impression that you had persuaded him (Pryce-Jones) not to write this book. The bits he sent me were so full of errors that it would have been useless and probably impossible at this stage to correct them. So, if the book does come out, please do not think any of it was of my writing."

In all, the protests led to the removal of six relatively unimportant lines and a pre-publication sale that exhausted the first printing of 6,000.

Diana Mitford Mosley, Unity's older sister and the former first lady of British fascism, has written a review that calls the portrait of Unity "a grotesque caricature." But like the other aristocratic critics, she never really addresses the most painful features, Unity's grotesque and vicious anti-Semitism.

Her close friend was the bestial Julius Streicher, "Darling Streicher" she called him, according to Pryce-Jones' book. Unity, he writes, recounted with glee how Streicher brought Jews up from his cellar and made them eat grass to entertain dinner guests.

On the eve of the war, Hitler gave Unity a choice of four Munich apartments seized from Jews. The book describes how she calmly measured each for curtains and rugs while the dispossessed Jewish families stood by and watched.

Lord Lambton's complaint was the most peculiar of all. He called the book "pornographic" and said, in a telephone interview: "There were some filthy things in it."

Lambton's disgrace makes him a curious figure for a prude. Apparently what aroused him were suggestions that Unity was too self-centered for anything but onanism, a plausible description of Hitler as well.

Lambton insisted that his real concern centered on the "errors" and "misquotations" he charges Pryce-Jones with perpetuating. At least one Mitford relative, on seeing the proofs, denied Unity had made an anti-Semitic remark attributed to her.

Lambton, too, has written a review in this week's Spectator, and it is as venomous as if he and not Hitler had been Unity's chosen friend. Of the publisher, Lambton writes:

"It is said in defense of Lord Weidenfeld that he does not enjoy reading. This is unfair, but his full-time occupation of genuflecting and sycophanting to every notable and visiting notable in England, swirling daily through the drawing rooms of London in a series of palais glides, whispering obsequiously, leaves him breathless for such a mundane task. Rather does he deal with books as a butcher with joints of meat: His sole consideration, the clearance of his stocks."

As a windup, Lambton disposes of Pryce-Jones and Weidenfeld together. "For in the writing and publishing of such a shoddy, inaccurate, dull little book, these two have sacrificed the accuracy and truthfulness which have been the proud hallmark of the Jewish establishment since the war."

For all its discursive writing and flaws in organization, the book does explain the central mystery, the curious and mutual attraction of heiress and dictator.

Hitler was evidently flattered by the worshipful attention of an aristocratic groupie, a striking 6-foot blonde and British Aryan. He used her, moreover, to transmit deceptive political messages to her friends in the British consulate at Munich and embassy in Berlin.

Unity, who as a debutante carried a live snake to parties, was engaged in a fierce competition with the glorious Diana. A brilliant beauty to whom Evelyn Waugh dedicated his "Vile Bodies," Diana had snagged the equally glamorous Oswald Mosley and his movement of truncheon-wielders in the Jewish East End.

At Munich, Unity went her older sister one better, attracting the attentions of an even bigger fascist.

The German dictator and the British girl spent hours and even weekends talking together about politics and people, Aryans and Jews. She drew up lists of Britons who would come over to him when he occupied England — "several rather dizzy lords," according to Mary Ormsby-Gore, Harlech's sister.

Hitler told Unity he disliked Mussolini. She promptly passed the message to British diplomats, who innocently read it to mean that the Axis was shaky.

The odd couple drank tea and broke bread in the Osteria Bavaria, the Munich cafe where they first met. They dined at Haus Wahnfried, home of the Wagner family. Unity sat at his feet in Hitler's Munich flat and he stroked her hair. But they always seemed to be surrounded by Hitler's entourage. He never brought her to Berchtesgaden, where a jealous Eva Braun was installed.

When war broke out on Sept. 3, 1939, Unity sat down on a park bench in the English Garden at Munich and shot herself in the temple with a small pistol. Although the bullet lodged in her brain, she survived. Hitler sent her back to her family in England, and she did not succumb to the wound for nearly nine years.

Why should a group of British peers react so furiously to this strange tale 28 years after Unity's death.

Pryce-Jones offers one explanation:

"Many of these people represent the great ruling Whig aristocracy who dominated English history down to the present. They enjoy a great deal of wealth and privilege. Perhaps today, for the first time, they feel themselves threatened by egalitarianism. My book seems to suggest not only are they threatened, it calls into question the desperate lengths people will go to defend their social position. What we will never know is to what extent Englishmen in the 30s were prepared to compromise with Nazism to save their own positions, and would they do so again?"

SOCRED WELFARE DEFENDED

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm has defended his ministry against criticism Saturday by New Democratic Party MLA Rosemary Brown.

Ms. Brown said the Social Credit government has made "ruthless and insensitive" cuts in service to the poor, women, older people and the handicapped.

She said that it (the government) reflects the attitude of the people, then disadvantaged and dependant groups in the province are in serious trouble.

Mr. Vander Zalm said, however, that the only change n the ministry since Social Credit came to power is one of philosophy.

He said that under the former NDP government the idea in humanm resources was "what can we do for you?"

Social Service Cutbacks Looming, Says Gibson

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia may have to cut back on social service programs started by the former New Democratic Party administration, says provincial Liberal leader Gordon Gibson

Gibson said the provincial economy is not as healthy as politicians believe and "we aren't rich. We're just well off —but fading fast."

He said the province would have to "hold the line," which could mean "cutting back on a lot of the nice things the NDP got us into without knowing how to pay the bills."

Gibson compared B.C.'s economic situation with Britain's.

"Santa Claus doesn't live here anymore than he lives in England, as the British are finding out," he said.

Gibson criticized the former NDP government, calling it "a disaster without parallel in the economic history of this province."

And, he said, companies would not invest in B.C. until "the fear of the return of NDP socialism is effectively removed from this province by a change in public opinion."

Meanwhile, he said, "lack of investment will leave us with a stagnant economy — meaning fewer jobs and lower wages."

Gibson was speaking to members of a fraternity at the University of B.C.

On Sunday Gibson called for a major constitutional conference of citizens, not government, to work out the basis of a new Canadian constitution.

Speaking in Vancouver, Gibson said he is reluctant to put his trust in the federal and provincial governments to arrive at a new constitution.

He said he would like to see involvement from people of all regions of the country in a national dialogue with constitutional amendments submitted to a referendum.

Basford to Hear Appeal for Peltier

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Justice Minister Ron Basford has agreed to meet lawyers for United States Indian leader Leonard Peltier on Wednesday to discuss Peltier's pending extradition to the U.S.

Lawyer Don Rosenblum said Sunday that Basford has agreed to an informal oral submission. He said it was the first time that such a hearing has been granted.

Basford must make a decision, according to recent court rulings, on whether Peltier is being sought on political grounds, as his lawyers claim, and whether Pelfier will be extradited.

Peltier is wanted in the U.S. on charges of murdering two FBI agents in June, 1975. He was arrested in Alberta Feb. 6 and brought to Vancouver, where he has been in custody since then.

After a four-week extradition hearing, Mr. Justice W. A. Schultz of the British Columbia Supreme Court ruled that Peltier should be extradited. The ruling was appealed, but a three-member federal court of Canada hearing upheld the decision.

Peltier's lawyers claim the charges against him are politically-motivated.

Bill Will Miss Crowning Touch to 30-Year Career

By AB KENT
Times Staff

When Bill English walks out of his office for the last time Dec. 29 one of his few regrets will be that he could not move with his colleagues into the Institute of Ocean Sciences he helped found at Patricia Bay.

The institute is at least four months away from opening, three months after Dr. English, deputy director general of marine sciences for Environment Canada, retires with 30 years of government scientific work behind him.

First occupants of the main building under construction overlooking Pat Bay are due to move in March from their downtown Victoria quarters, followed in August by the administration and formal opening probably in February 1978.

English, in collaboraion nig probably in February 1978.

English, in collaboration with regional hydrographer Mike Bolton, recommended the Pat Bay site in 1964, when he was director of the newly-opened Bedford Institute of Oceanography at Dartmouth, N.S.

It took 10 years for the priorities and finances to fall into place for the Pat Bay institute, during which English became deputy director of marine sciences on the Pacific coast.

"I've had a pretty satisfactory career and have enjoyed working for government," he said, citing the high calibre of scientific work done in Canadian government laboratories.

Government science ranks among the highest in the world, "but you don't find the same flourish in Canadian industry, even with applied research," English said.

He thinks the basic problem there has been that encouraging industrial research has been made too complex. The make-and-buy policy, for esample, "has been good but it requires more and more rules and fewer and fewer incentives, and of course, no new funding, which is bad luck."

English has served through three periods of austerity starting with the depression years when he did land surveying with the CNR and graduated in physics and mathematics from the University of B.C.

But in 1937 there was no opportunity for graduate work in oceanography on Canada's west coast and English went to University of California to work on a doctorate in gaseous electronics.

That was interrupted by the Second World War and five years in the RCN, part of it on loan to the Royal Navy as a radar officer. He went back to California to complete his Ph.-D. in 1948.

ENGLISH

Then came successive jobs with National Research Council on nuclear physics at Chalk River, and Pacific Naval Laboratory, Esquimalt, where he worked on underwater acoustics and low-frequency magnetics, became head of marine physics section and acting superintendent.

In 1962 English was appointed to head the Bedford Institute, co-inciding with the era of Diefenbaker austerity, but in time staff grew from seven to 130, not counting ship's crews and acquisition of a brand new research vessel, Hudson.

For four years English worked at the Canadian Army research and development establishment at Valcartier, Que., becoming acting director general.

In the next two years he did contract work for B.C. Research Council in Vancouver, and accepted his current appointment in 1970.

Today's austerity is "probably as difficult a time as we've ever gone through," he said.

There is insufficient funding for a full Pacific Coast hydrographic and physical, chemical or biological oceanography program, added to the laying up of the research vessel William J. Stewart.

In addition, the marine sciences have been required to give priority to Arctic programs without additional funding.

As a director of scientific programs, English has become closely acquainted with the logistics of administration. Like director general Dr. Robert Stewart, he believes in fitting the programs to the people to gain maximum results.

He feels it is a misconception to believe that laying down a lot of rules will lead to solving problems. "You really have to motivate people."

When it comes to encouraging industry, he said, "I don't see much motivation at the working level."

Government also can be preoccupied with things like centralized materiel management and financial control.

"It reminds me of Petawawa (scene of a celebrated post-war army scandal) where millions were spent to avoid any future horses on the payroll.

"You will never succeed in eliminating abuses that way, only in cutting down on the work performed."

It has been his experience that where departments have the most elaborate controls and little motivation to work, inventory losses remain high.

"You need high morale and good people with the interests of the project at heart."

Government and big corporations are much alike: the bigger they get the more complicated they are; said English, agreeing with an observation by Dr. Stewart that many problems arise from trying to control problems that are uncontrollable.

He has found in government scientific work a spirit recognizing that "the work had to be done and that's what we're paid for."

It is unfortunate the Pacific-based scientists had to assume responsibility for Eastern Arctic research in Lancaster Sound, in addition to the Western Arctic and west coast waters, without extra funding, English said.

Vernon Comes Home: A Triumphant Traviata

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Timothy Vernon's return to his home city as conductor of the Canadian Opera Company's La Traviata was unquestionably a triumph.

No indulgence was present nor required in the prolonged and vociferous applause that followed Sunday night's performance at the Royal.

Well sung and acted by a gifted ensemble, La Traviata was conducted with a discerning blend of elegance, romanticism and high drama that was constantly proportioned and disciplined to avoid excesses yet sustain the emotional levels of Verdi's most moving and gentle opera.

Shallowness of the Royal Theatre pit apparently makes it nearly impossible to balance the orchestra for all parts of the house. From where I was sitting, left of centre, first balcony, the brass was altogether too heavy and overpowering but friends sitting on the other side did not note the same fault.

The orchestra was thoroughly competent in general, with beautiful tone in some of the familiar string cantabiles and minutely responsive to the conductor's demands.

Lorna Castaneda has a rich and powerful soprano and looks striking with her black hair and oval face. She is a passionately appealing Violetta who produces a particularly lovely effect in her pianissimo singing when her tone is rounded, delicate and limpid with not the slightest trace of breathiness. There was a tendency for some of the coloratura passages in Simpre Libera, for instance, to blur a little but when she joined Glyn Evans, Alfredo, in duet the effect was more than satisfying.

Evans possesses a fine tenor, the bel canto quality well developed at the same time that there is plenty of warmth and color present.

His performance, vocally and dramatically, was equally effective in the lyrical first act and in the impassioned climactic scene of the third act.

Germont, probably the most likable instrument of fate in all opera — Alfredo's father who causes the lovers to part — was quite exceptionally well done by Larry Cooper, whose smooth and resonant baritone with its appeaing qualities of depth and sensitivity, made the scene with Violetta in Act Two especially affecting.

There was fine ensemble singing when the cast of 11 was on stage together.

As to the mounting of the opera, the sets were over-decorated and "busy" with a sort of nouveau-rococo effect that made a poor contribution to what was otherwise highly satisfactory.

The event was sponsored by Victoria Symphony Society which had also offered a Sunday afternoon performance conducted by assistant conductor William Shookhoff with Barbara Carter and Paul Frey in the Violetta-Alfredo roles.

UNESCO Accepts Israel

NAIROBI (Reuter) — Israel was accepted today as a member of the European regional group of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), ending one of the disputes hanging over the organization.

The president of the UNESCO conference, Taitta Toweett of Kenya, announced to the full session of the conference today that a majority of the members of the European group have accepted Israel's application to join them.

The refusal of the last conference in Paris in 1974 to admit Israel to the European group led to the United States withholding its financial contribution to UNESCO.

The only opposition today came from Communist countries. On their behalf, the East German delegate told the conference that Israel is not a European country and any decision to admit it should have been unanimous.

3 Ousted Ministers Return

PARIS (AP) — Three cabinet members ousted in the government shakeup last summer won their National Assembly seats back in runoff elections Sunday.

Another lost his bid. He was Gerard Ducray, former deputy minister of tourism and a member of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's Independent Republican party.

Ducray was defeated by Socialist Andre Pouttissou in Villefranche-s u r-Saone (central France).

Aymar Achille-Fould, former deputy postal minister and the owner of the Chateau Beycheville vineyards, defeated Raymond Julien of the Radical party for a seat from the Medoc district near Bordeaux.

Radical party leader Gabriel Perronet, who had been deputy minister of public affairs, defeated Communist Charles Marcilly in Vichy.

Bernard Destremeau, former deputy foreign minister and an Independent Republican, overcame Communist Jean Cuguen in Versailles.

QUESTIONABLE SHARES SOLD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Columnist Jack Anderson says he is selling most of his financial holdings because of misunderstandings about his role in a bank that was partly owned by backers of South Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon.

The Washington Post reported last week that a substantial portion of stock in the Diplomat National Bank of Washington, of which Anderson was a founder, was controlled by associates of Moon. It said they included Tongsun Park and Pak Bo Hi, who are under federal investigation for allegedly trying to improperly influence U.S. officials with bribes and favors.

"Some newspapers that I respect have raised questions about my affiliation with the Diplomat Natinal Bank," Anderson said in a statement Sunday.

"I joined the board to help the Asian-American Community establish their first national bank. I have no financial interest in the bank. Perhaps I was misguided, but I looked upon my affiliation was a service to the Asian-American minority."

He said he also has financial interests in other unnamed "commercial enterprises. My wife is also the principal stockholder in a corporation that owns some real estate and some shares in a Chinese restaurant chain."

Anderson said he has always kept his business affairs apart from his syndicated muckraking column.

But "since my association with the Diplomat National Bank has been misunderstood, it is possible that my other financial holdings might also be misinterpreted," he said. "Therefore I have instructed my attorneys as quickly as practical to sell all of my holdings and to dissolve all my business affiliations."

DISAPPOINTING TURNOUT

Status Quo Shaken Up

At least partial dissatisfaction with the past performances of the core municipal councils and willingness to test the mettle of political neophytes were reflected in Saturday's civic elections.

Of the four municipalities, only Oak Bay appeared content with the status quo by returning all three incumbents.

But four other office holders were tossed out — two in Saanich, one each in Victoria and Esquimalt — in what was a generally disappointing voter turnout.

One of the biggest surprises came in Saanich where a newcomer topped the polls and two incumbents were defeated.

John Mika, a legislative sessional staff researcher for the NDP, headed the polls with 4,651 votes. The defeated incumbents were Roy Wootten and Maurice Johnson.

Incumbent Mary Casilio held her seat, polling second with 4,601 votes. Also elected to council were Robert Cameron with 4,566 votes and Ian Cass with 3,570 votes. It was the second try for Cameron and Cass.

Following his defeat, Wootten said an "NDP election machine" helped Mika and Cameron get elected, contributing to his downfall.

Both said there was no organized NDP campaign. Mika said the only official support he received was a two-line insertion in the NDP's lower Island newsletter which asked NDP members to support him and school trustee candidate Carol Pickup.

Mika said today his first priority will be to make council more accessible to the people. He wants evening council meeting and publication of all agendas and minutes. Cameron said he wants to have citizens more involved with rezoning and will ask "a long hard second look" be taken on the Roy Road housing project and the proposed Royal Oak industrial park.

Cass said his priorities are to examine closely "the financial structure" and to ensure a high proportion of single-family homes remain.

Hubert Beyer received 3,414 votes. Following him were Wootten with 3,230 votes, Johnson with 2,673 votes, Jack Fry with 2,378 votes, Fichard Gauthier with 2,065 votes and Gordon Cowan with 825 votes.

A total of 8,796 residents voted out of 41,282 eligible voters, 388 registering Saturday at the polling stations — 21.3 per cent, compared to 40 per cent in 1975 when there was a mayoralty race and 14 per cent in 1974, a comparable year.

Victoria's recent decision to introduce biennial elections next year, in an effort to stimulate greater voter interest, seemed to be justified by Saturday's low 18.8 per cent poll — the smallest in 12 years.

Elected were two incumbents, Murray Glazier and John Hayes, together with two newcomers: Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labor Council, and car dealer Frank Carson.

The third incumbent, Bob Ellis, went down to defeat, philosophically explaining it with the comment that he maintains a low profile and doesn't go out seeking headlines.

Ryan is the first alderman on council with an organized-labor background since Mayor Alf Toone, who died in office in 1966 and was also secretary of the labor council.

During his campaign Ryan stressed the importance of preserving and expanding Victoria's industrial activity and the economy in general, because he argued that the city's fiscal health depends heavily on its employment base.

Today, he said that will be one of his priority tasks on council, and Ryan maintained that industry and the city's esthetic qualities need not be incompatible.

He said any upgrading of the city's less attractive areas must include the provision of alternative sites for dislocated industries.

"We must diversify as much as possible (in industrial-economic activity) but I am not suggesting this be done at the expense of the environment," he added.

Carson said many promises are made at elections but he sees the main task ahead as sorting out the priorities and placing a price tag on them.

That list should be made public, he said, because some candidates have been "pretending that we have open-ended cheque books."

Glazier, who topped the polls, attributed his success to his dogged hard work on council over the past two years, while Hayes said the result indicates residents support his stand on heritage preservation and rehabilitation of the Crystal Garden building.

But the surprise in Victoria was not so much who was elected, as what happened to the 31,000-plus voters who didn't vote at all.

In recent years, only the 1964 turnout of 18.6 per cent was lower than this year's poll.

A disappointed Syd Langhelt, president of the Fairfield Community Association, admitted he was expecting at least a 25 per cent poll.

In Oak Bay, re-elected alderman Shirley Dowell said voters turned out to oppose high education costs and any proposals to change existing single family home zoning.

She said she supported the five school board candidates who were elected and this view seemed to be shared by the majority of Oak Bay voters.

(The three losing candidates, who trustee Peter Bunn said advocated free-spending policies, trailed badly in Oak Bay polls. Without the Oak Bay vote, Carol Pickup would have had 7,989 votes to only 7,099 for stock salesman Peter Yorke and she would have been elected.)

Dowell said that, if the next school board budget is more than eight per cent above the previous one, she will present a motion that separate tax notices go out in Oak Bay for municipal taxes and school board taxes.

"Council is tired of taking all the flak for the school board budget."

Dowell said the three incumbents, herself, Douglas Watts and John Goult, easily defeated the only other candidate Jacquei Sellgren because Oak Bay is opposed to changes in the status quo on zoning.

University of Victoria professor Dr. Neil Swainson, an expert on municipal government, easily won election for a one-year term over John Buckley.

In Esquimalt, Barry Gilbert, who ran because he didn't want to see the three incumbents elected by acclamation, bumped off veteran Ald. Art Mebs.

Gilbert, a 39-year-old toolmaker, beat Mebs by 222 votes and won one of the three seats available.

He came in third behind incumbents Larry Mann and James McEvay who polled 1,377 and 1,278 respectively. Gilbert had 1,258 votes.

Mebs has served as an Esquimalt alderman for 10 years. He was defeated in 1973 but ran again successfully the following year.

Concern Over Taxes Reflected in Votes

Voters casting ballots for school trustees indicated their concern with rising school taxes when they elected three businessmen along with the two incumbents to the nine-member board.

Topping the polls was vice-chairman Susan Brice, closely followed by the only other incumbent, Dr. Mark Fisher.

The three new members — Peter Dorazio, business manager for Victoria Press; Bud Smith, proprietor of Sprott Shaw business school, and Peter Yorke, manager of a stock brokerage firm — had all stressed fiscal responsibility in their campaigns.

Yorke narrowly won the seat over Carol Pickup, who ran unsuccessfully for the NDP in the last provincial election against Hugh Curtis in Saanich and the Islands, and John Young, businessman and former educator.

Mimi Robertson who topped the polls in her home area of Esquimalt, ended up in eighth spot.

The three new trustees will replace chairman Bill Ross, Janet Baird and Roy Temple, all of whom have resigned.

Still sitting on the board with one-year remaining in their terms are Lavinia Greenwood, Daphne Temple, Peter Bunn and Hal Knight.

The election of Dorazio, Smith and Yorke will probably mean Mrs. Brice will be elected chairman of the board. As vice chairman, she usually aligned herself with trustees favoring spending restraints.

Young said he will run again next year. This was the second consecutive year he narrowly lost a seat. Last year he finished fifth in a 12-way race for four seats.

Mrs. Pickup said today she will try again next year.

Mrs. Robertson said it was too early to decide — that she hadn't had time to think about it.

In Saanich school district, Lois Walsh retained her North Saanich seat on the board by defeating challenger Gary Gibson. There are no changes on the seven-member board.

Three other trustees were returned by acclamation: Chairman Gerry Kristianson in Saanich, Norma Sealy in Sidney and Walter Tangye in Central Saanich.

They re-join Jack Armstrong, Harry Tobin and Rubymay Parrott, who have one year left on their terms.

In the Sooke school district newcomer Arlene Ward joined incumbent Irene Lane as they beat out four other candidates for the two positions in the Belmont zone.

Bonnie Fournier, Gwen Day, Jack Hannam and John Craggs trailed, in that order.

Chairman Horst Doniecki was unopposed in the Milnes Landing zone for another two-year term.

Pauline Chamberlain, William Stevenson, Brian Killip and Noel Haas have one year remaining in their terms.

Mrs. Ward takes the place of Alan Littler, a former chairman and six-year board veteran, who did not run this year.

Two Seek Mayor's Seat In Sidney

A retired Air Canada engineer and a retired air force warrant officer will seek the mayor's chair in Sidney on Dec. 11.

Former alderman Dick Leigh, 62, and Eric Sherwood, 58, were the only candidates when nominations closed at noon today.

One of them will succeed Mayor Peter Malcolm who is leaving for a new job in Vancouver.

In addition, Sherwood, a television repairman, is running against Ald. James Lang, 63, a retired industrial commissioner, and Jerry Tregaskis, 33, a credit manager re-elected to council Saturday, for the Sidney directorship on Capital Regional District board.

Hunter Ballot Called Confusing

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria's all-in-one Hunter ballot should be changed because it's confusing and results in a number of spoiled votes, Ald. Bill Tindall said today.

Tindall said the ballot, combining candidates for city, school board and regional board, may have been appropriate even a few years ago but it now has obvious flaws and city council should ask staff to investigate voting systems used in other cities.

The Hunter ballot was copyrighted in 1928 by former city clerk Frank Hunter and has been used continuously by Victoria ever since.

But Tindall said the method of overlapping sheets all combined on the same ballot causes problems for many voters, who don't seem to realize that they are required to make their choice in three distinct election races.

Some mark the section for the regional board (which appears first on the ballot) but then do not vote for the aldermanic or school board candidates, he noted.

"The system appears utterly confusing to many," he said.

The alderman said he would like to see three completely distinct ballots for the three election components, with large easily-understood posters erected at all polling stations to explain exactly what is required of the voters.

As an example of the difficulties under the present system, he pointed out that two candidates — incumbent Bob Ellis and Bill McElroy — scored well in the regional race but didn't qualify for one of the two seats because they failed to win election to city council.

A lot of people are still very vague about what the regional board is and what it does, he believes.

Tindall had nothing but praise, however, for one innovation this year — the practice of allowing eligible but unregistered voters to register at the polls.

In Victoria, 284 voters took advantage of this opportunity on Saturday — 82 of them at the main silver Threads polling station and 81 and 66 respectively at Fairfield and James Bay, two areas with active community groups.

Butler Favors Community Plan

A new community plan and improvements in the water supply will be the new priorities in Central Saanich, re-elected Mayor Jean Butler said today.

She said the defeat of a referendum to provide funds for a recreation centre demonstrated that citizens in Central Saanich have other priorities.

"The people have spoken and I will abide by their wishes," she said.

Butler defeated challenger William Rogers, real estate company manager, after warning voters that the municipality already faced heavy expenditures over the next two years without adding the recreation centre costs to the tax bill.

She said she did not actively oppose the plan but merely outlined the expense involved.

Central Saanich voters rejected 1,115 to 920 a proposal to supply funds for a $1.85 million recreation centre along with North Saanich and Sidney. Now the other two municipalities will proceed with a scaled-down version costing about $1.3 million.

North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve and Sidney Mayor Peter Malcolm both expressed disappointment at the vote.

Malcolm said some candidates in Central Saanich used the referendum as a political issue to get re-elected.

Two challengers for council Gardo Gurr and Larry Scott, both favored the recreation centre and were defeated.

Ald. David Hill, who opposed the recreation centre, topped the polls in the aldermanic race.

In Sidney, Mayor Malcolm said his council has been weakened after Saturday's election results.

"I am keenly disappointed by the low calibre of candidates elected to council," he said.

"They tossed out a good man, Ald. Bob Wallace, and elected Bernard Ethier, whose knowledge of Sidney is zero to judge by his election statements. Ethier said in advance his only reason for running was to prevent acclamation and now he has been elected."

A low turnout of just over 800 voters elected incumbent Jerry Tregaskis along with newcomers Eleanor Sowerby and Ethier.

Malcolm said Sowerby was obvously inexperienced and not up to the calibre of many Sidney people who have been active in community affairs but who disappear at election time.

"It is a shame that capable and active people disappear into the woodwork when it is time to stand for public office."

"When I say Ethier and Sowerby are weak candidates, I mean compared with the man who was defeated (Wallace) and the others in Sidney who are very capable but did not choose to run."

He said Wallace was probably defeated by a heavy turnout of elderly voters opposed to his plan to let young people use the senior citizens hall when older people had gone home.

Malcolm said he could understand why senior citizens would be upset to have young people using their hall for dances and wild parties.

"Wallace is like that. He comes up with bad ideas from time to time but he comes up with hundreds of good ideas, too. He's what you could call a rapid-fire thinker. It was a shame he was defeated."

In North Saanich, retired naval officer George Westwood topped the polls in being re-elected to council. Voters rejected incumbent Peter Tredgett and elected merchant Robert Thompson and farmer Owen Philp, who had run unsuccessfully for mayor in the previous election.

Moths Herald Trouble

Prevalence of ½-inch moths appearing to infest Greater Victoria this balmy fall is a reminder of defoliation to come next spring.

Adult moths flitting about will mate and females will climb fruit trees, hawthornes and other ornamentals to lay eggs that will hatch into Bruce span worms come May and June.

The span worm, recognizable by its peculiar looping action, has a healthy appetite for green leaves and can strip the first leaves from cherry or apple trees in a few days.

Dave Evans, of the federal forestry laboratory, suggests now is a good time to place tanglefoot bands around trees liable to be looper targets in the spring.

Females will become trapped in the sticky substance and be unable to lay their eggs in the upper branches.

Sticky bands are inexpensive and non-toxic — something like old-fashioned flypaper, "only stickier," Evans said.

Outpatients Get Reprieve

Memorial Pavilion outpatient department will remain open until mid-1977 instead of closing Dec. 31, Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel MacDonald announced on the weekend.

He said the extra time will allow veterans to be integrated into the normal patient care pattern at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The decision to close the department resulted in the formation of the Victoria-based Veteran's Rights Association, which strongly opposed the move claiming treatment of veterans would deteriorate.

In a letter to Conservative veteran's affairs critic, Jack Marshall, MacDonald said: "The continuation is dependent on finding medical practitioners to staff the department; the hospital is optimistic this can be done.

"Once the integration has been completed, the outpatient department will be phased out, and this is now planned for June, 1977."

MacDonald added that the ambulatory care unit now under construction at the hospital will be available 24 hours a day for a more extensive service.

He said the current outpatient load is only one-third of what it was when the hospital was operated by the veterans' affairs department.

John Collins, president of the VRA called MacDonald's move a "victory of sorts."

But he added the association will keep pressing to obtain better facilities.

VRA executive director Peter Foy said the minister is still failing to come to grips with the real problem—putting a stop to the "erosion of veterans' rights."

In 1974, the pavilion became part of the Royal Jubilee and treatment programs for veterans began to be integrated with the operation of the regular hospital.

He Was the Noblest Roman of Them All

IMPERIAL ROME LEFT her strong reminders in Britain, among them Hadrian's Wall that once strode from coast to coast across the north of England. But the presence conjured up for me isn't that of some helmeted centurion on guard against the barbarians. Instead, I remember Jim Weir, a sturdy Northumbrian cab-driver who lives in the town of Hexham near The Wall.

The railway that follows the River Tyne inland from Newcastle brought us to Hexham on a morning that threatened rain.

We inquired our way to the County Hotel, a foursquare hostelry all a-bustle with preparations for a wedding reception. The innkeepers' wife spared time from her flower arrangements to check us into a double rest, which is to say a room for two.

We had come for a look at Hadrian's Wall and the Roman forts, Win explained. Were there tours?

Our hostess considered, a sheaf of red roses in hand.

The tour season was over. Too bad! And (with a glance through the windows) it wasn't much of a day to be tramping about the countryside. But if we really wanted to see the old Roman works, Ted Duncan or Jim Weir might take us out by taxi.

We waited by a coal fire in a spic-and-span parlor straight out of the coaching days. Presently we were summoned to the lobby, where a stocky man of middle age stood by a tall stand of blooms. He wore no-nonsense boots and a black rain jacket. His face had the country look imposed by wind and weather.

He was no guide, Jim Weir told us bluntly. The other driver, Ted Duncan who knew a lot about the ruins, was off duty. All he could do was run us out there, for a look round. The rate was three pounds an hour.

Jim drove us briskly by narrow roads now wet with rain. They dipped and climbed with the roll of the fields.

"Go-by land," he told us once, with a nod at the rough grass that climbed a slope. "Most of it good for naught but sheep." And again, as our sunken road curved past a land-swell sparsely grown with trees, "Young chap with more troubles than he could carry hanged himself up there within year past."

It occurred to me as we put the miles behind us that for a non-guide, Jim was imparting a fair bit about his North-of-England district.

"I expect we're following one of the Roman roads," he said. And the low hump off to our right, so minor that it had escaped my notice, was a trace of the wall itself — the garrisoned barrier that once stood between the Roman Britain and the raiding Picts and Scots of the north.

"My relatives," said Jim with a trace of a smile. "They were a wild lot. I've hear they kept the Romans busy."

We traded our road for a still narrower one. It ended in grassland. But there was more than the grass of the go-by to be seen.

Laid bare by the archeologists, stone joined to stone, were the complex groundworks of a fort planned by military engineers and built by soldier-artisans. This was Chesters, one of the strongpoints from which Rome maintained her authority on her northernmost frontier.

We had half-expected Jim Weir to stay snug in his cab. But he hopped spryly out and trudged along with us, explaining as we picked our way among the ruins.

Here were the granaries. Here the baths, their water warmed by central heating. Over there the barracks, and yonder the commandant's house.

Not as we saw it all now, Jim said, his rain-jacket collar hunched up around his ears and his chin tucked down against the drizzle, but everything spit-and-polish as it should be in the headquarters of a crack unit.

Cavalrymen . . . that's what they were at Chesters, and the best in supplies and equipment from the depot down at Corbridge none too good for them!

Later at Housesteads, he would show us another fort, and if my wife didn't mind a little scramble, she would get her chance to walk on Hadrian's Wall.

Our non-guide was doing rather well by us. He seemed to be enjoying himself in spite of the weather.

Win unslung her camera.

"Come on," I said to Jim. "Picture time. Suppose we make like a couple of legionaires heading for the wet canteen?"

Jim Weir gave me a broad smile. He braced his shoulders and jutted his chin. Standing there he became for the click of a camera the noblest Roman of them all.

A Life of Fear for New York's Elderly

By WILLIAM CLAIBORNE
Washington Post

NEW YORK — The yellow taxi with its fake markings and two plainclothes cops up front turns into darkened Jesup Avenue in the Bronz, and cruises slowly past small knots of staring black and Hispanic youths.

Some of the faces lining the sidewalk light up in recognition as they shout derisively, "Dee-tectives" and recoil in mock horror. The driver ignores the derision.

Farther down the narrow street, lined with grimy brick tenements and overtunred trash barrels, the taxi approaches an old couple.

Their bodies are bent against the wind, and unmistakable fear shows on their faces, even in the dark shadows of the buildings.

The old man, dressed incongruously in an expensive-looking herringbone tweed overcoat and walking with a cane, holds the old woman with his free hand.

They tentatively pick their way past the shouting youths, their eyes resolutely pointed stright ahead as if fixed on an ephemeral goal.

Detective Gerry Keegan stops the car abruptly, and whistles between his teeth, saying to his partner, Donald Gaffney, "Look at that, will you? What the hell are they doing out here at this time of night?"

Gaffney shakes his head.

But the hands on his watch point exactly to 5 o'clock — barely after dark and when most people are just headed home from work.

The street is a few blocks off the bustling Grand Concourse, once the premier address for New York City's Jewish upper middle class.

The old couple, with the deaddress for New York City's Jewish upper middle class.

The old couple, with the detectives' car cruising slowly alongside, make it to their building this night.

But with alarming frequency in the southwest Bronx — and in some neighborhoods of Manhattan, Brooklyn and Queens as well — old couples aren't making it back to their apartments.

Or, when they do, they fay become the victims of a type of crime that is becoming epidemic in New York City—the "push-in" robbery.

Police call it a push-in when an elderly victim is followed home by one or more youths and then, upon unlocking the door, is shoved into the partment and robbed, tied up, gagged and sometimes brutally beaten. Some of the old women are raped.

In the street, it is called a "crib job," because it is like taking candy from a baby.

So far this year, there have been 600 crib jobs investigated in the Bronx, so many that the New York City Police Department found it necessary to form a special Senior Citizens Robbery Unit.

There have been 20 murders of old people in the borough, and 200 beatings.

In Manhattan, there have been 34 murders of elderly citizens this year, and in Brooklyn, 25. But it is in the Bronx, which has the largest city and which is larger in elderly concentration in the population than all but four cities in the entire country, that most of the public attention has been focused.

According to the police, the statistiacs in the Bronx re only the top of the iceberg.

The crimes against old people that are actively investigated, according to the Bronx special robbery unit, represents only a third of such cased reported to the police.

In turn, the estimated 1,800 cases represent only half of the crimes, because many elderly victims of robberies are either too afraid or too disillusioned to report them.

"These figures don't even take into account simple purse-snatching on the street. The chances of solving them are one in a million, and we don't have the capability of investigating, or even recording them," said Detective Sgt. James Bolte, head of the senior citizens unit.

What this means to many of the estimated 250,000 senior citizens living in the Bronx — and more elsewhere in New York City—is a life of abject and utter hopelessness.

Some say they don't go to bed at night without moving a heavy dresser or clothes chest against the front door, and some have even moved their can escape in case someone breaks into a rear window.

The ultimate expression of fear of crime in the southwest Bronx was by Hans Kabel, 78, and his wife, Emma, 76, who committed suicide together last month, a few days after intruders broke into their apartment and slashed the woman's face with a knife.

FESTIVE SEASON DANGERS CITED

NEW YORK (UPI) — A U.S. government expert predicted today that 150,000 children will be seriously injured by hazardous toys during the coming holiday season because of parental carelessness.

Alex Labonski, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission's New York area director, said most holiday injuries to adults and children result from parental laxity, especially where electrical equipment is concerned.

"Despite voluntary compliance by the industry to eliminate toy hazard . . . too many parents are risking the safety of their children by ignoring basic rules," he said.

"Parents also ignore their own safety, as well as their families', when it comess to holiday tree lights and decorations," Labonski said.

"Year after year, they string 35 million sets of lights . . . and ignore the useful life expectancy of 3 to 5 years of these products.

"It is not uncommon to see the same family string the same tree lights for 10 straight years," he said.

"The result of this blatant abuse is too ofen fire, electric shock burns and an assortment of injuries that compel an annual expenditure of $1.2 million for medical treatment."

Black Seeks Carter Church Role

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — The overflow congregation was singing the last stanza of the hymn, Jesus Paid It All.

At that moment, Rev. Clennon King, a black activist, stood at his seat and presented himself for membership in the all-white Plains Baptist Church.

Pastor Bruce Edwards, who had extended the traditional general invitation for membership before the final hymn, announced King's application to the congregation and said merely it would be referred to the "watch care" committee for a recomendation ater.

With that, the controversy that has engulfed this hometown church of president-elect Jimmy Carter for more than step.
three weeks took yet another step.

The 415-member congregation had voted last Sunday to open its doors to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ," and that night a black person attended the newly desegregated church.

Carter, offering the layman's invocation at the start of the worship service Sunday, prayed that the congregation would respond in a Christian fashion "because we are being observed very closely by the reest of the world."

He did not refer to the racial troubles, but he noted in his prayer that "what we do in this church can rebound with great benefit, or differently . . ."

Microwaves Now Used To Cause Nerve Upsets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newly-declassified U.S. Defence Intelligence Agency report says extensive Soviet research into microwaves might lead to methods of causing disoriented human behavior, nerve disorders or even heart attacks.

"Soviet scientists are fully aware of the biological effects of low-level microwave radiation which might have offensive weapons application," the report said.

Microwave beams are the electonic basis of radar and are widely used for relaying long-distance telephone calls.

The report made no direct mention of the Soviet microwave bombardment of the U.S. embassy in Moscow, where despite strong American protests the radiation continues, though at reduced levels.

Until now, the view most widely-accepted among state department officials has been that the Soviets appear to be using the microwave beams to foil sophiosticated U.S. electronic intelligence-gathering equipment at the embassy.

The state department issued an administrative notice on Nov. 12 declaring Moscow "an unhealthful post." Department officials, however, insist that medical tests have found no adverse health effects attributable to the microwaves.

The Soviets have denied beaming any radiation at the embassy, contending that the microwaves are simply part of the normal background radiation found in any major city.

The Pentagon agency's report, distributed within the government last March, said one biological effect which might offer anti-personnel uses is the phenomenon known as "microwave hearing."

"Sounds and possibly even words which appear to be originating intractanially within the head can be induced by signal modulation at very low average power densities," the study said.

"Combinations of frequencies and other signal characteristics to produce other neurological effects may be feasible in several years," it added.

The report said that along with microwave hearing, the to microwaves and other frequencies of electromagnetic radiation.

Soviets have also studied various changes in body chemistry and functioning of the brain resulting from exposure

Aerosol Ban Poll 'Waste of Money'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two consumer products safety commissioners are unhappy over the release of a poll showing that many Americans want a ban on aerosol sprays containing fluorocarbon gases.

Commissioners Barbara Frankin and David Pittle favor such a ban and have been on record that way for some time, but they think the $18,000 survey, released last Thursday, was immaterial to the decision the commission must make on the issue.

Ms. Franklin said it may have been a waste of money this late in the game.

The poll was released at a news conference called by the pollster, Dr. Walter de Vries.

That same day, the comission was meeting in executive session on a petition from the natural resources defence council for a ban on fluorocarbon aerosols under CPSC jurisdiction — mostly household cleaners.

The de Vries survey of consumer attitudes in 37 states showed that more than half of those polled are either willing to ban such products, or have already cut back on their use.

The commission disagreed over whether to turn the matter over to the environmental protection agency and came to no decision. Technically the commission must decide the matter by next Friday or the NRDC can go to court to force a decision.

Jackson Listens, Then Leaves

MONTREAL (CP) — Free-agent outfielder Reggie Jackson and Montreal Expos ended contract negotiations Sunday night, a spokesman for the National League baseball club said.

"John McHale, the club president, told me they had concluded negotiatiions and he wishes to make no further comment at this time," the spokesman said.

"Our understanding is that Jackson is going to New York tonight, but I don't know how or when."

The New York Times reported Sunday that the Yankees of the American League will meet Jackson early this week to make their pitch. Jackson was Montreal's first-round choice in the Nov. 4 draft of negotiating rights to 24 free-agent players and is the biggest name still unsigned.

The Expos have banked heavily on the rapport between Jackson and Dick Williams, who managed Oakland A's when Jackson was there and who will take over the Montreal reins for next season.

The slugging superstar arrived Friday for a weekend visit.

In addition to meeting with the Yankees, Jackson has said he will meet Ray Kroc, owner of San Diego Padres, in Chicago on Wednesday to hear his offer.

Even Losers Draw Bowl Berths

Times News Services

There were prizes for losers as well as winners Saturday when Michigan trounced Ohio State 22-0 and University of Southern California hung a 24-14 setback on the University of California at Los Angeles.

To the winners went berths in the Rose Bowl game as champions of the Big Ten and Pacific Eight conferences, but the losers were quickly snapped up by U.S. college football bowl promoters.

Ohio State agreed to play in the Orange Bowl game against the winner of next Saturday's conference championship game between Colorado and Nebraska. And UCLA will play in the Liberty Bowl game on Dec. 20 against Alabama.

Most other major bowl pairings were also announced following Saturday's games:

● Top-ranked Pittsburgh and Georgia, both idle on Saturday, will meet in the Sugar Bowl game on New Year's Day in the Louisiana Superdome;

● Maryland, blanking Virginia, 28-0, for its first unbeaten season since 1955, will play in the Cotton Bowl game in Dallas on New Year's Day with Houston as its probable opponent;

● Notre Dame, 8-2 this year, will meet Penn State on Dec. 27 in the Gator Bowl'

● Kentucky, winding up scheduled play with a 7-0 win over Tennessee, will play in the Peach Bowl game on Dec. 31 in Atlanta against North Carolina;

● Texas A. and M. and Florida have agreed to play in the Sun Bowl game in El Paso on Jan. 2;

● Wyoming got a bid to the Fiesta Bowl game, in Tempe on Christmas Day, despite taking a 41-21 Saturday lacing from Air Force. Wyoming will meet Oklahoma;

● Texas Tech, losing for the first time this season when Houston scored a surprise 27-19 win, decided not to stake its bowl chance on lowly Rice beating Houston next Saturday. The Raiders accepted a bid to play in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl game in Houston on Dec. 31. The other team has not been named, but there was speculation that 10th-ranked Iowa State, the only team in the top 10 without a bowl game, might get the bid.

Stop heat loss through the glass with Granite's

SECONDARY WINDOW SYSTEM

Designed to be the most efficient insulation with an air gap of at least 1" between your existing window and the inside glass. This is called the secondary window system. Drafts are eliminated right round the window because the aluminum secondary inserts are weather-stripped and fitted so precisely on the inside. So the cold stays outside and the heat stays inside and these double glazing units open from the inside for draft free ventilation. Our craftsmen measure your windows individually, then tailor your double glazing units to fit inside. Precisely.

Riders Win Squeaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Art Green proved a point he has been trying to make with Ottawa coaches and it played a big part in the Rough Riders' 17-15 win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats Sunday in the Eastern Football Conference final.

He wants to carry the ball more than 20 times a game, and on Sunday he got it 27 times and responded by rushing for 124 yards as Ottawa advanced against Saskatchewan Roughriders in next Sunday's Grey Cup in Toronto.

Green was one of the big guns of the Ottawa offence in the first half of the season. But he says he "didn't get the ball much during the second half" when the Riders managed only two wins in seven games.

"Today I got the ball over 20 times and the offensive line blocked well. . . . When that happens I get the feel of the defence."

Riders kicker Gerry Organ also atoned for a disappointing season by kicking field goals of 48 yards, 30 yards and 20 yards and converted Ottawa's only touchdown, a 60-yard pass and run from Tom Clements to Gary Kuzyk. He also scored a 20-yard single on a wide field goal attempt.

The Riders waltzed to a 16-1 halftime lead but the Tiger-Cats came alive in the second half with Jimmy Jones hitting flanker Terry Evanshen for touchdown passes of 43 yards and 25 yards. Ken Clark kicked a 44-yard single in the first quarter and converted both touchdowns.

Hamilton got its offence into gear twice in the final quarter.

But a third-down-and-four-yards-to-go gamble from the Ottawa 39 failed when Jones was forced out of bounds for a five-yard loss and Jimmy Edwards fumbled the ball on the Ottawa 52. It was recovered by Rod Woodward.

Jones said the Ticats decided at halftime "to come out in the second half determined to see what we could do."

"We came within two points of doing it."

Ottawa coach George Brancato was happy with his team's line play. "Our offensive line was coming off the ball real well. They made lots of holes."

Middle linebacker Larry Cameron was singled out for "his best game in a long time."

"He and the other guys up front pretty well contained Edwards all day," Brancato said. But the offence "should have scored more points in the second half."

The Riders had a total offence of 395 yards, 198 on the ground and 205 through the air for 19 first downs. The Ticats managed 226 yards total, 172 yards passing and only 75 on the ground.

Ottawa fans will have lots more to ponder over about the fate of Green and defensive tackle Rudy Sims. Both are playing out their options and while Ottawa's management says contract talks are continuing, Green is rumored headed for the National Football League.

McGee, Molnar Power Roughies Over Eskimos

REGINA (CP) — Halfback Molly McGee will have revenge in his heart as he works out this week with his fellow Saskatchewan Roughriders in preparation for the 1976 Grey Cup final against Ottawa Rough Riders Sunday in Toronto.

McGee, who rushed for 100 yards Saturday as Saskatchewan dethroned Edmonton Eskimos 23-13 in the sudden death Western Football Conference final, was released by Ottawa earlier this season.

"Sure I want to play Ottawa," he said. "I've got something to prove to some coaches over the release. I've got nothing against the players—they're great guys—but the coaches are something else."

Veteran Ron Lancaster said McGee's quickness combined with the power of fullback Steve Molnar to give Saskatchewan its best ground attack of the season.

Molnar collected 144 yards in 27 carries. The team total of 247 yards was three times what Edmonton gained.

Molnar scored the first touchdown on a one-yard plunge and tight end Bob Richardson made a one-handed grab of a Lancaster pass for the clincher in the fourth quarter.

Bob Macoritti filled out the scoring with a convert, a single and field goals of 13, 17 and 45 yards.

Larry Highbaugh picked up a fumble by McGee in the second quarter and ran 16 yards for Edmonton's touchdown.

Dave Cutler, who made the convert, also had field goals of 27 and 33 yards, but missed on three attempts from outside the 50 and had one blocked.

The victory sent Saskatchewan to the Grey Cup for the first time since 1972, when Hamilton Tiger-Cats won 13-10.

The Edmonton defensive team, which sparkled last weekend in a 14-12 victory over the second-place Winnipeg Bombers in the WFC semi-final, was almost as effective Saturday. But quarterbacks Bruce Lemmerman and Tom Wilkinson could not generate a consistent attack.

Part of the problem was a series of dropped passes—rookie halfback Howard Strickland dropped four. Another problem was the wind, which gusted to 48 kilometres an hour.

"Our defence came up with the ball," said Eskimo head coach Ray Jauch.

"They scored our touchdown. They did a great job. We just couldn't score with the dang wind."

The most visible defensive standout for Edmonton was safety John Farlinger, who intercepted two passes and picked up a fumble. Another apparent interception, by cornerback Joe Hollimon, was nullified by a pass interference penalty late in the first quarter.

Jauch refused to say the penalty was a turning point, but the Roughriders scored a few plays later.

"These players have done everything we asked them to do," said Jauch. "I don't want to make excuses."

Head Coach John Payne of the 'Roughriders said his team, which resumes practices today and is scheduled to leave Wednesday for Toronto, did not suffer any major injures.

Slotback Tom Campana and defensive back Paul Williams missed the game with ankle injuries, but are expected to be ready if required next weekend.

Vikings, Raiders Divisional Champs

By The Associated Press

"We had a chance to fail and we didn't," said coach Bud Grant, whose Minnesota Vikings beat Green Bay Packers 17-10 Sunday and won the championship of the National Football Conference Central Division.

It is the eighth time in nine years that Grant, a former head coach with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League, has taken the Vikings to the NFL Central Division title.

"This is only the first step," said coach John Madden, whose Oakland Raiders clubbed Philadelphia Eagles 26-7 and clinched their fifth consecutive American Conference West title and their ninth divisional crown in 10 years.

They were expressions of slight relief. Divisional championships mean little should the winners fall short of a trip to Pasadena for the Jan. 17 Super Bowl game.

"We've still got hope and we've still got a chance," said Washington Redskins coach George Allen. "We've just got to keep it going and never let up."

"We win them or else we are out, we can't save anything," said Cleveland Browns coach Forrest Gregg.

Allen's Redskins, who could have been eliminated by a loss, kept their playoff hopes alive in the National Conference East with a 16-10 triumph over St. Louis Cardinals. The victory, combined with Atlanta's 17-10 upset of Dallas kept Washington within two ames of the first-place Cowboys and one game of the Cardinals.

Gregg's Browns helped themselves in the American Conference Central, lashing the winless Tampa Bay Buccaneers 24-7 Sunday and remaining hopeful of the wild-card shot for a playoff trip.

New England's Patriots inched within one-half game of the AFC East-leading Baltimore Colts—who visit the Miami Dolphins tonight—with a 38-24 victory over New York Jets.

Pittsburgh's surging Steelers kept pace with Cleveland at two games behind AFC Central-leading Cincinnati, ripping Houston Oilers 32-16 for their sixth consecutive triumph.

The NFC West-leading Los Angeles Rams put down second-place San Francisco 23-3 and opened a 1½-game margin over the 49ers, who lost their fourth in a row.

Meanwhile, the Bengals nipped Kansas City Chiefs 27-24, San Diego Chargers pasted Buffalo Bills 34-13, Detroit Lions beat Chicago Bears 14-10, Denver Broncos clipped New York Giants 14-13 and New Orleans Saints blasted Seattle Seahawks 51-27.

Fran Tarkenton completed 23 of 43 passes for 180 yards and two touchdowns as the Vikings nailed down the crown against Green Bay, 4-7. His 11-yard pass to Ahmad Rashad in the fourth quarter broke a 10-10 tie.

New Orleans, 4-7, intercepted three passes and recovered two Seattle fumbles in crushing the Seahawks, 28-9. Getting two touchdown runs from quarterback Bobby Douglass and one each from rookies Tony Galbreath and Chuck Muncie, the Saints tied a team record for point production.

Pearson Takes L.A. '500' Race

ONTARIO, Calif. — David Pearson remained steady while his closest competitors dropped out one by one, and the Spartanburg, S.C., driver brought his Mercury home a full lap ahead of Lennie Pond for Victory in Sunday's $185,000 Los Angeles Times 500, the season finale of NASCAR Grand National stock car racing.

Cale Yarborough, who wrapped up the national championship by merely starting the race at the Ontario Motor Speedway, was Pearson's final challenger. Yarborough's Chevrolet burned out a clutch 100 miles from the finish.

Benny Parsons nipped Dick Brooks by a car length for third, a lap behind Pond. James Hylton was fifth.

Pearson, who collected about $18,500 for his 10th victory this season, started from the pole position with a record average qualifying speed, but he trailed Yarborough and Richard Petty in the early going.

Petty went out with a burned valve at the 127th lap.

Roy Smith of Victoria, who was driving a 1976 Laguna owned by Victoria's Dick Midgley and had qualified 17th, blew an engine on the 20th lap after coming from 25th place to 15th.

Janet Guthrie, who unofficially ran as high as ninth, and Carl Joiner, tangled briefly to bring out one of the two caution flags at lap 117. The race had been run at record speeds until then.

Skip Manning, finishing eighth, edged seventh-place Terry Bivins by a single point for the Rookie of the Year title.

'I Made a Mistake' Bruin Boss Admits

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Ernie McLean of New Westiminster Bruins hates to concede anything to Victoria Cougars' Pat Ginnell.

But McLean, owner-coach of the Bruins, conceded Sunday that Ginnell, owner-coach of Victoria's Western Canada Hockey League club, may have a chance of winning some lost points.

The points at stake Saturday night in Memorial Arena seemingly went to New Westminster when McLean's Bruins, striking for three unanswered goals in the final period, defeated the Cougars 5-3.

But Ginnell, discovering that McLean failed to list centre Ray Creasey on the official game sheet, is protesting the decision. Based, of course, on Bruins' use of "an ineligible player."

Everybody started asking questions when "No. 12" drew an assist on a first-period goal by Mark Lofthouse. McLean, obviously aware of his mistake, didn't play Creasey for the final two periods.

But the benching may have been one period too late.

"I made a mistake," grumbled McLean on Sunday.

"If Ginnell wants to claim points in that manner," he added, "he can have 'em."

As of this morning, Ginnell still intended to claim the points.

From Victoria's standpoint, the protest may be a delayed, saving grace of what turned out to be a bad night.

The Cougars lost two players and, generally, came out "flat."

Defenceman Lorry Gloeckner was gone before the game began. He hurt his back while taking a shot during the pre-game warmup. It's tentatively diagnosed as a pinched nerve, but a more thorough examination is to be taken today.

Winger John Gordon packed it up in the second period after stopping a hard shot with an ankle.

Cliff Lennartz, handling the team from the bench for Ginnell, did some juggling. It didn't help.

Except for a few players, including an overworked Murray Bannerman, the team suffered through one of its poorest performances in more than two months. The Cougars lacked sustained zip, and went only in spurts.

The letdown, it must be admitted, was overdue. The Cougars were unbeaten in nine previous home games and had played extremely well for the past four weeks.

Cougars had their greatest problems with winger Mark Lofthouse and defenceman Barry Beck. It was Beck, starting the game at centre ice, who helped get Lofthouse started to a good night.

Beck's pass put Lofthouse into the clear for the first of three goals at the 11-second mark. Lofthouse also drew on assist on a goal by Don Hobbins.

Beck, a bear on defence, might have managed three goals himself but for Bannerman and some bad breaks.

The Bruins didn't make any lineup or on-ice mistakes Sunday. They belted the visiting Calgary Centennials 9-1 to move to within two points of the Cougars, top cats in the Western Division.

Portland Winter Hawks crept to within four points of the leading Cougars by defeating Calgary 8-5 but Kamloops Chiefs, continuing in a slump, lost ground to their Western Division rivals by losing a pair.

Lethbridge shaded Chiefs 5-4 Saturday and Medicine Hat racked up a 5-3 win Sunday.

In other games Sunday, Bill Derlago scored four goals to make it 30 for the season and goaltender Glen Hanlon posted his fourth shutout as Brandon Wheat Kings blanked Saskatoon Blades 7-0, and Flin Flon Bombers belted the Regina Pats 8-2.

Calgary visits Victoria on Tuesday.

"Two sets to love is not the end of the world, you know!"

Oak Bay, Argyle Share Title

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

When the 1976 high school soccer campaign started in September, Argyle Pipers displayed a carefree attitude towards games and practices.

"They weren't serious," coach Les Wilson bluntly admitted.

"A few weeks after the season started, they discovered they can win games," he added, "and I guess they wanted to see how far they could go."

The North Vancouver squad, surprising some of their mainland rivals, went right to the top. At least, to a certain degree.

They would up sharing partial riches by playing Oak Bay to a 1-1 overtime tie Saturday, a fair result that left the two schools as co-winners of the 1976 British Columbia championship.

Argyle, fighting back as they have all season, came off the brink of defeat when Mark LeSage scored the equalizing goal with less than three minutes left in regulation time.

A goal by Joe Mendonca at the nine-minute mark had provided Oak Bay with a 1-0 lead. The Victoria-area champions maintained that advantage for 78 minutes before LeSage broke through to score in the dying minutes before a crowd of about 900 at Royal Athletic Park.

Bouncing back isn't new to the Pipers. They qualified for the 16-team proovincial tourniament for the first time in history by winning a penalty-kick shootout in their district playdowns.

More shootouts followed. Pipers had to resort to the kicking to advance to the tournament semi-final and final.

LeSage, who twice earlier had been thwarted on excellent goal-getting opportunities, emerged as Argyle's scoring hero, but the steadiest standout for the Pipers was centre half Bill Holdyk. The red-haired midfielder was the heart of Argyle's game and his efforts were rewarded by being named the most outstanding player.

Oak Bay, 1975 finalists, were served best by fullback Ken Anderson and forwards Mendonca and Tiberio DeFrias.

DeFrias almost missed the overtime action Saturday. When the regulation game ended, the young winger hustled away to attend a brother's wedding. Coach Bernie McNally-Dawes had to chase him to the parking lot to bring DeFrias back for overtime play.

Rutland Voodoos, like Argyle one of this year's surprises, finished third by defeating Carson Graham Egales 3-1.

Lord Byng Grey Ghosts finished fifth by defeating Centennial Centaurs — the defending champions — 4-2; North Surrey blanked Abbotsford 3-0 to finish seventh; Eric Hamber edged North Kamloops 2-1 to take ninth place; Alberni surprised Victoria's Spectrum 5-2 to finish 11th; Nanaimo downed Trail 4-2 to finish 13th.

Vanterights Upset Lakers

Vantreights of the Vancouver Island Soccer League's third division recorded the only upset in the opening round of the annual Jackson Cup knockout competition.

And it was the inability of Prospect Lake, their second-division rivals, to score from the penalty spot that allowed Vantreights to proceed to the second round.

Tied 2-2 after regulation and overtime play, Prospect Lake players missed on their first three kicks. Vantreights didn't.

Teams from the second, third and fourth divisions — along with non-league entries from Courtenay and Nanaimo — participated in the opening round.

Sunday's 14 winners move into the second round and will be joined by all 10 premier division sides. The draw for the second round, to be played Dec. 4-5, will be made this week.

Nanaimo Boxer Takes Main Bout

Rated as a promising young boxer, Barry Cresswell looked the part Saturday night as the Victoria Athletic Club staged a 14-bout amateur card at the club headquarters.

Going against Victoria's Wayne Crowe, who reached the final in his weight class last spring in the Canadian championships, the Nanaimo puncher earned a decision over Crowe in the three-round, welterweight main event.

Gary Robinson of the host club was also a loser in the semi-main event as Burnaby's Barry Blatter won the duel of 90-pounders.

Most spirited action on the program came in the 130-pound division when Tom Turnbull earned a decision over Ken McLeod from the Hastings club in Vancouver.

Over the route, punchers from the Victoria club took five of the 11 bouts in which they were involved.

Clubmates joining Turnbull as winners of decision were Jack Dillon, Matt Montgomery, Paul Panke and Del Robinson.

Other VAA athletes in action were Dave Danyluck, Malcolm Montgomery, Scott Shaffer and Jeff Cashin.

Big Six Squads In a Tying Mood

Because all teams were in a tying mood Saturday, Western Home Buckaroos and Chemainus Blues failed to break a tie for second place in the South Island Big Six Hockey League.

They'll get a chance again tonight when the Blues meet the Bucks in Memorial Arena at 8:15 p.m.

Buckaroos salvaged a 7-7 draw with the Lakers in Lake Cowichan when Dave Pettinger connected with less than two minutes left in the game.

The Blues, getting brilliant netminding from Vic Malli, tied Juan de Fuca Merchants 2-2 in a game at Chemainus.

Bob Nicholson scored three and picked up three assists to spark Bucks. Randy Krantz, Doug Berger and Bill Pettinger also scored for Western Home.

Rod Maier and Mark Colombe each popped a pair while Merv Maier, Rick Boyd and Neil Sanders supplied one apiece for the Lakers, who remained only one point behind Buckaroos and Chemainus.

Juan de Fuca unleashed 78 shots at Malli but only Perry Head and Murray Thomas were able to connect. Bill Harwood and Barry Bleakley scored for the Blues, who fired 50 shots at Kelly Hunter in the wide-open affair.

Everything Went Wrong

HONG KONG (AP) — Judy Rankin of the United States, battling tricky winds and a late challenge from Japan's Chako Higuchi, shot a one-over-par 73 Saturday to win the $50,000 Hong Kong Open women's invitational golf championship with a score of 216.

Mrs. Higuchi finished three strokes behind at 219, also firing a final-round 73.

Canada's Sandra Post, who shared the overnight lead with Mrs. Rankin, scored a final-round 81, which included three bogeys and three double-bogeys.

"Everything went wrong today," said the Oakville, Ont., native.

Miss Post finished with a score of 224, tied for fifth place with Australia's Jan Stephenson.

Bridgman Scores a Pair As Flyers Down Flames

By The Canadian Press

What's this—a crucial National Hockey League meeting between Philadelphia Flyers and Atlanta Flames?

The Flyers have been accustomed to head-on meetings with Montreal Canadiens, Boston Bruins, Buffalo Sabres and the like in their big games of the last few years. Since when have the Flames joined the circle of superpowers?

They haven't—and the Flyers haven't been flying, either.

Philadelphia managed to hang on for a 6-5 decision over the Flames on Sunday, however, and it was probably as big a game as they've played this season. The victory put the fumbling Flyers into a second-place tie with Atlanta in their division, eight points behind the idle New York Islanders.

In other games, Pittsburgh Penguins blanked Chicago Black Hawks 5-0, Montreal outscored Toronto Maple Leafs 9-5, Boston beat Detroit Red Wings 4-2 and Washington Capitals clipped Colorado Rockies 3-1.

Barely beating the Flames may not appear to be a career highlight for the Flyers, but the two-time Stanley Cup champions have to start somewhere. After winning the Patrick Division handily for two years, Philadelphia appears in danger of being buried by the Islanders this time.

Mel Bridgman scored two goals, including the eventual winner, and Ross Lonsberry, Rick MacLeish, Tom Bladon and Paul Holmgren had one each. Randy Manery and Curt Bennett scored in the first and second periods respectively for the Flames.

Then Eric Vail, Hilliard Graves and Bill Plett connected for the final three goals in the last 10 minutes to throw a scare into netminder Bernie Parent.

Dunc Wilson made 25 saves, including one on a penalty shot by Chicago's Alain Daigle, for the shutout that sparked the Penguins at Pittsburgh.

Jean Pronovost scored two goals—giving him a career total of 251—and Dennis Owchar, Stan Gilbertson and Greg Malone one each for the Penguins.

Steve Shutt pushed his league-leading total to 23 goals with three for the Canadiens at Montreal. Larry Robinson scored two, while Jacques Lemaire, Guy Lapointe, Yvon Lambert and Rejean Houle added singles against rookie Toronto goalie Mike Palmateer, who gave way to Wayne Thomas with less than seven minutes remaining.

Scott Garland had two goals for Toronto, and singles cames from Don Ashby, Inge Hammarstrom and Pat Boutette.

Jean Ratelle scored one goal and assisted on two as the Bruins extended their home-ice unbeaten streak to 30 regular season games with their victory over Detroit.

Ripples by Debbie Are Getting Bigger

Debbie Smith is making bigger and bigger ripples on the Vancouver Island badminton scene.

Winner of the three titles the previous weekend, in the Saanich Junior championships, Debbie was back in the spotlight at Brentwood Community Hall Saturday night.

The bright prospect for stardom, captured the women's singles crown for a second year and shared the women's doubles title in the finals of the annual Sannich open championships.

There were other plyers who won or shared two crowns in open events of the week-long tournament.

Don Woodland retained the men's singles title with a 15-3, 15-5 triumph over Gerry Mounce and then combined with Bob Lewis for a 15-6, 15-11 victory over John Mieja and Warren Sweeney in the men's doubles final.

Bob made it two titles for the family when he joined forces with Lynn Lewis to win the mixed doubles title, getting by Lyn Polson and Meija in a 7-15, 15-6, 15-9 struggle.

Miss Smith also had to toil through three games to collect her titles during a night of tense matches.

She dropped the first game to Diane Sluggett before winning the singles final by a 7-11, 11-6, 11-4 count.

Diane and Debbie were partners in the doubles final and outlasted Lyn Polson and Lynn Lewis in a 17-15, 16-18, 15-1 battle.

Tie Salvaged By Cowichan

Cowichan struck for a second-half try at Duncan Sunday to finish in a 6-6 deadlock with Oak Bay in a first division Vancouver Island Rugby Union match.

Oak Bay moved into a 6-0 lead on the opening half on a try by Brent Huggins and Gillie Greig's conversion.

Cowichan salvaged the draw when Dave Bellis went over for a try and John Garvie kicked the two-point conversion.

The result left Oak Bay and Cowichan sharing third place after all six clubs have played one match in the regular season.

Knotted on the top rung of the first division ladder are defending-champion James Bay, a 26-10 winner Saturday over the improving University of Victoria Vikings and Castaways, who toppled Velox the previous weekend.

Barry Robbins booted two penalty goals and two conversions for the Bays, who got tries from Rod Fiddick, Hans De Goede, Gary Johnston and Ray Rogers.

Viking points resulted from tries by Ted Zinkan and Alistair Palmer, plus a conversion by Brent Johnson.

Busiest place for the scorerecorders Sunday was at Windsor Park, where Oak Bay erupted for 10 tries on the way to 56-4 whipping of Nanaimo in a third-division contest.

Nanaimo's second-division side was slightly more prolific at Nanaimo Saturday, rambling to a 57-9 triumph over the haples UVic Norsemen.

Four Tied For Lead In Scoring

There's a humdinger of a race going on for individual scoring honors in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Four players are deadlocked for first place with totals of 39 points. Another two are tied at 36 and four others are within seven points of the lead.

Sharing the top berth are Murray Allen (20 goals and 19 assists), Kevin Kennedy (18 and 21), Terry Parsons (14 and 25), all of Esquimalt, and Dan Malushka (14 and 25) of Juan de Fuca.

Two Saanich aces, Brent Patterson and Ron Jobson, have 36 points, and Esquimalt's John Entzminger is another point behind.

In the weekend's only league game, Juan de Fuca Gulls got four goals from Rick Turcotte and cruised to a 9-2 decision over the Kerry Park Islanders at Mill Bay.

Mike Milligan notched two tallies for the Gulls, who fired 59 shots at Mill Bay goalies Mike Wylie and Tony Burns while building leads of 5-0 and 8-0 in the first two periods.

A Cool Welcome For a New Club

Rebels IV joined the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association during the weekend and the welcome was anything but warm.

Rebels IV werre crushed 4-0 in their debut by Tigers II, a squad formed for the second half of league play by the amalgamation of two teams — Kangonis and Tigers.

Tigers II and Rebels IV are competing in the second division of the league, which has been split into two five-club sections for the second round.

Also chalking up asecond-division win Sunday were Rebels III, 3-2 conquerors of the University of Victoria.

Rebels I and Tigers I got away to successful starts in the first division. Rebels I squeezed past Castaways 1-0 on a goal by Dave Johansen and Tigers I took a decision by default from Rebels II.

In the second division, Don McKnight (2) and Brian Foley scored for Rebels III and Chris Hoskins counted both UVic tallies. Jagdawe Mangat (2), Subhash Sharma and Boota Singh cored for Tigers II.

Shutouts in Style

Shutouts were in fashion Saturday in the Vancouver Island Ladies' Field Hockey Association.

Oak Bay trimmed Sandpipers 2-0, Sailors scuttled Castaways by the same score, UVic Vikettes trimmed Spartans 4-0, Hobbits Brown burned Rebels Red 8-0 and Cowichan was awarded a 2-0 decision by default over Vagabonds.

Out of step with style were Rebels Gold, who topped Evergreens 2-1; Mariners, who routed Rebels 5-1, and Sanderlings and Hobbits Mauve, who postponed their match.

Scoring:

Oak Bay (2) — Julie Straith (2); SANDPIPERS (0).

SAILORS (2)—Wendy Page, Marlene Walls; CASTAWAYS (0).

VIKETTES (4)—Carrie Cruikshank (2), Jan Crook, Lynn Verry; SPARTANS (0).

MARINERS (5)—Cheryl Blevins (2), Carole Neeves, Caroline Penn, Jill Boyd; REBELS (1)—Jody Hunter.

HOBBITS BROWN (8)—Diane Sluggett (4), Deanna Daniels (3), Sam Munroe; REBELS RED (0).

Bears Topple Hornets

VANCOUVER — Saanich Hornets built up a 9-8 lead in the opening half and then saw their hopes of a provincial title wrecked midway in the final quarter of a B.C. semi-final bantam football playoff Sunday at Empire Stadium.

Mike Villett finally found a chink in an excellent Hornet defence and broke loose for a 50-yard touchdown run in the last period to give Surrey Bears a 15-9 victory over the Vancouver Island champions.

Bruno Kreigel, with a first-half touchdown, Ernie Jackson, with two conversions, and Ernie Beau, with a single, accounted for the other points notched by the Greater Vancouver champs.

Hornets, who had yielded an average of only six points per game in the Island playoffs, fashioned their early lead on a four-yard touchdown run by Bob Haire and Mark Townsend's contribution of a single and a two-point conversion.

Linemen Rob Kayter, Rick Morgan, Lance Jesson and Allan O'Neill and linebackers Joe Kurylo, Ray Cartwright and Brett Diana anchored the Saanich defence that appeared likely to get the Islanders home in front until Villet exploded for his touchdown gallop.

Scorps Skid Off the Track

Ken Shields did his best to get Victoria Scorpions back on the track Sunday, but it still ended up as a lost weekend for the Victorians in a senior "A" men's basketball exhibition series in the old gymnasium at the University of Victoria.

Matched against Tacoma Plywood, a club that looks like a collection of tall firs with a forward line averaging about six feet, eight inches, the Scorpions dropped a 100-83 decision Saturday after running out of petrol on a second-half charge.

Sunday afternoon, the Victorians were trailing the Tacomans by five points at half-time and looking like probable losers.

Prospects changed abruptly at the start of the second session with the appearance of Shields, who had coached University of Victoria Vikings in Edmonton the previous night and reached the gym just before the intermission.

Shields hit three successive shots from the field and he kept the Scorpions rolling until he ran into foul trouble late in the game and took a breather on the bench.

Holdings a 91-90 lead with about 40 seconds remaining, the Victorians skidded off the track when Dave Workman swished a Tacoma shot from the top of the key.

Scorpions charged back. Bill Robinson bounced a shot off the rim with 13 seconds on the clock. A few seconds later Victoria's Bob Burrows went for a layup in heavy traffic and missed.

Then a foul call settled it for the home club. Tacoma ace Clint Names dropped two free throws and the Plywood crew walked off with a 94-91 verdict.

Scorpions were trailing by 16 points at the half in Saturday's contest and also staged a rally in that one. They had trimmed the margin to five points with three minutes remaining, when a shot by Victria guard Brian McKenzie spun out of the hoop.

The Plywood gang snatched the rebound and grabbed the on that play and outscored the momentum. Tacoma scored Victorians by 10 points in the final two minutes.

Robinson, despite missing on several long attempts in the closing stages, topped Victoria with 22 points.

A. T. Brown fired 22 for Tacoma and Names notched 20.

Lumberettes Roll Past SFU Squad

Victoria Home Lumber keeps rolling in impressive style toward a pair of clashes (Dec. 3 and 4) in Victoria against the Australian women's basketball team.

Lumberettes, the reigning Canadian senior women's champions, made it eight victories in eight exhibition starts this season by cruising to a pair of weekend triumphs over Simon Fraser University.

Playing in the old gymnasium at the University of Victoria, Home Lumber followed a 70-54 Saturday win with a Sunday trimming (76-52) of the collegians.

Most effective against their taller opponents when they used a player-to-player press on defence, the Lumberettes ran up a 35-16 lead in the opening half Sunday.

Yielding points at a faster rate when they defended with a zone system in the closing stages, the Victorians were never in any trouble.

Mary Coutts (17 points), Lorna McHattie, (15), Rose Jossul (10 and Diedre Freethy (8) set the scoring pace for the lumber crew in Sunday's contest.

Points leaders for Victoria Saturday were Coutts (15), McHattie (14), Diana Morris (12) and Freethy 9.

Gail Klaver, with 22 points Saturday and 14 Sunday, and Jan Richards, 12 and 16, packed most of the scoring load for SFU.

Refs, Pandas Rough on Vicettes

Suddenly it wasn't so simple for the University of Victoria Vikettes.

Winners of the national collegiate women's basketball crown in an unbeaten campaign last season, and away to a flying start this season with three successive triumphs in the Canada West Universities Athletic Association league, the Vikettes almost came a-cropper Saturday at Edmonton.

They found themselves in the unfamiliar situation of worrying about possible defeat and were forced into overtime before chalking up 74-72 triumph over the Alberta Pandas.

It was a basket by Ronni Hind late in overtime that gave Vikettes their fourth successive win and first place in league standings.

After trimming the Pandas 69-51 on Friday, the Victoria girls were troubled Saturday by unusual officiating and a case of fumble-fingers as they struggled to keep their win streak intact.

Victoria was whistled for 23 of the game's 35 fouls, including 13 of 17 in the second half.

Two of the Alberta free shots, scored by Lori Chizik with 12 seconds remaining in regulation time, sent the contest into overtime with the score deadlocked at 68-68.

Marie Morrison, Lesley Godfrey and Miss Hind notched the overtime baskets for UVic.

Marg Mainwaring dropped 14 field goals to lead Victoria scorers with 28 points.

Sherry Stevenson, a student at UVic last season, paced the Pandas with 17 points as Amanda Holloway, last year's scoring queen, was checked effectively by Miss Hind and managed only 14 points.

There was again little joy for Victoria Vikings in a men's league game despite a 47-point scoring outburst by Jim Duddridge and a 25-point effort by Lee Edmondson.

Vikings were clipped 96-90 by the Alberta Golden Bears, who took over the top berth in their league with four straight victories.

Vikings, who lost a 79-77 overtime decision to the Bears Friday, are now 1-3.

In other men's games, UBC Thunderbirds whipped Saskatchewan Huskies 91-76 and Lethbridge Pronghorns dropped Calgary Dinosaurs 85-77.

In women's contests, Saskatchewan bounced UBC 60-47 and Lethbridge tripped Calgary 62-59.

3B, 4B and 7B gasmizer

The 4B Gasmizer is a simple, effective device that significantly reduces pollution and conserves gas. It utilizes the normal engine vacuum as its principal motive power, developing shock waves which are created by sonic frequency vibrations and induced into the fuel-air mixture as it leaves the carburetor. These shock waves materially aid the atomization of the fuel-air mixture thus allowing for more efficient combustion to reduce pollution and conserve fuel.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Had today's deal arisen in a rubber-bridge game, it would have passed by unnoticed, for only an overtrick was at stake. But the deal happened to come up during the 1976 National Championships, and the overtrick, as in all duplicate games, can be worth its weight in gold. As a matter of fact, by making the overtrick at his game contract, South obtained the best North-South result on the deal.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

On the king of clubs opening lead East played the five and South dropped the queen! West, fearful that queen was a singelton, was naturally reluctant to continue the suit. So, at trick two, West shifted to a low trump.

Declarer won the trick with the king, after which he cashed the queen and jack of trumps, picking up the outstanding pieces. Then came a diamond, with South's queen being finessed. West captured the trick with his king.

West was still apprehensive about playing his ace of clubs, so he exited with a heart to the board's king. Next came three rounds of diamonds, declarer discarding dummy's two remaihing clubs on the last two diamond leads.

East, who had discarded a diamond on the third trump lead, now found himself hard pressed for a discard on the fourth diamond lead. If he tossed away a heart, declarer would cash the heart ace and ruff a heart, thus promoting dummy's fourth heart into a winner, so he discarded his next-to-last club, the six-spot.

Now declarer played the ten of clubs out of his hand. West covered with the ace, dummy ruffled — and South's seven of clubs had just become the highest-ranking club left in the deck. So, thanks to West's refusal to play the ace of clubs either of the two times West had the lead, declarer's only losers were a club and a diamond.

Would you censure West for his play? Or, putting it another way, in real life would you have played the club ace after South has falsecarded with the queen?

"Sorry I kept you waiting," said Steve, greeting his sister at the door. "It must be cold out there."

Eve smiled. "Well, it is freezing," she told him. "But I noticed something funny about the two thermometres on the wall. The new one reads 20 degrees colder than the other."

"Sure," Steve chuckled. "It's centigrade, what they call celsius."

What were the readings?

Thanks for idea to F. C. Asbury, Toronto, Ontario.

$7,000 Test-Tube Mum

SAN FRANCISCO — A man who advertised last year for a "test-tube" mother to bear his child through artificial insemination is now the proud father of a baby girl.

"Childless husband with infertile wife wants test-tube baby," said a want ad published April 15, 1975, in the San Francisco Chronicle. "English or northwestern European background. Indicate fee and age. All answers confidential."

He was the last of his family line and he said that when the advertisement was placed he wanted a child to carry on his family name. He chose artificial insemination because, he said, it would be immoral for him to have a sexual relationship outside of marriage.

The man was never to meet the mother of his child. The woman selected was described only as an attractive, blonde, unmarried office worker. She had never had a child before.

The baby, five pounds and six ounces, was born Sept. 6. His wife, he said, was a "bit dubious" about the idea at first, "but she loves that baby now like it was her own."

He said he still wants a son. "I can't afford it right now," he said, "but I may try again."

The father said expenses totalled about $10,000 — $7,000 in payment to the mother and the rest in legal and medical fees.

Freedom for Patty Means Buying a Dog, Reading . . .

SAN FRANCISCO — Patricia Hearst, back with her family for the first time in almost three years, says she's looking forward to reading the latest best-sellers, getting a dog and gaining weight. "It was like I never left," Miss Hearst said in a copyright interview in the San Francisco Examiner, her father's newspaper. "It's nice to be home. I'm just moving in, getting settled and wandering around."

MUNICH, West Germany — The Snake Egg, the first film made by Ingmar Bergman outside Sweden since he began directing in 1944, is a horror movie. But that's all Bergman will say. Liv Ullmann plays the role of circus artist Manuela Rosenberg. David Carradine is the Jewish trapeze artist Abe Rosenberg.

TAMPA, Fla — Curiosity landed a city garage worker in jail. Police said a worker was putting gas in G. R. Wotherspoon's patrol car Thursday when he noticed a small black box, which resembled a portable television with a keyboard, on the front seat. "What's that?" the worker said. Wotherspoon explained the computer system which tells whether a person is wanted by police or a car is stolen. He typed the man's name to show him how it worked. A reply came back that the worker was wanted for failure to appear in court on charges of driving without a licence. Wotherspoon then arrested the man.

LOS ANGELES — Pop singer Tina Turner was arrested on the weekend after a policeman who stopped her for a traffic violation spotted a .38-calibre revolver in her purse. She was released after being booked.

NANAIMO — Veteran New Democratic Party MP Tommy Douglas was left almost speechless after he and his wife, Irma, were honored at a special dinner attended by about 300 persons.

"It is not often that I am speechless," Douglas told the gathering.

Wars Between Satellites Likely

NEW YORK (UPI) — Future wars could be decided in space by orbiting satellites, Newsweek Magazine said Sunday.

Newsweek said a space battle between hunter-killer satellites could determine the outcome of any war on earth by crippling the orbiting early warning and ballistic missile defence systems of the losing nation, forcing it to capitulate under threat of massive nuclear attack.

In what may have been the first blow in an all-out space war by the 1980s, Newsweek said two U.S. reconnaissance satellites, orbiting high over the Indian Ocean last year, suddenly were "blinded" by a powerful beam of infra-red light from Soviet Siberia.

Newsweek said the satellites were victims of a Soviet laser attack — a charge the magazine said the defence department officially denies.

The magazine quoted U.S. Defence Secretary Donald Rumsfeld as saying the satellites probably had been "dazzled by the glare of natural gas fires along a pipeline in western Siberia." But Newsweek added, "He avoided saying flatly that lasers were not the cause."

The report said that a few weeks after the two U.S. satellites were knocked out of action, the Soviet Union launched an unmanned spacecraft and sent it tracking another Soviet satellite deep in space.

"After a brief pursuit, the hunter closed in and paused to examine its quarry," the magazine said. "Then it moved away to a safe distance and exploded — proving that it could have destroyed the target on command."

The article said chemical lasers, requiring no electrical power, already have been developed by the United States and that such beams have generated pulses of 200 billion watts for one 20-billionth of a second — a speed-of-light burst researchers say "can vaporize metal and produce destructive shockwaves."

Newsweek said in addition to chemical lasers, the U.S. arsenal also holds the most powerful potential weapon of all in the massive space shuttle, which, with its launch in 1979, will carry 65,000 pounds of cargo and a crew of seven.

"I think the space shuttle has let a lot of demons out of the cave," an unidentified space expert was quoted as saying. "It has got people thinking."

Brezhnev Checks Satellite Ties

MOSCOW (WP) — Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev, only just returned from Yugoslavia, travels to Bucharest this week for talks with Romanian leaders followed by a summit of the Warsaw Pact, the first in 2½ years.

The rush of activity appear to reflect Kremlin interest in solidifying long-standing ties in Eastern Europe rather than marking some major new initiative, analysts here and elsewhere in the region believe.

The Belgrade visit last week was essentially a reaffirmation of the status quo in Soviet-Yugoslav relations, acknowledging again Marshal Tito's right to go his own way. Nonetheless, given the record of strain between the two countries, the impetus provided by successful summit talks always seems to improve the tone of ties — even though it does not alter them structurally.

A Pioneer Writes His Memoirs

elizabeth forbes

Bert Allcock has a phenomenal memory, vouched for by his family also by friends of long standing with whom he has shared stories of his 67 years in Canada.

Those stories, so vividly recalled and told in such an interesting way, have led family and friends to urge Allcock, on many occasions, to "write them down."

In the past two years that is exactly what he has been doing — writing them down.

Drawing on that phenomenal memory, he has worked "off and on," as he puts it, (and in long-hand) to place on paper not only the highlights, but day-in-day-out happenings that cover railway and road construction, mining and homesteading, in northern Alberta and British Columbia.

In recording these happenings, Allcock relied entirely on memory up to 1934. After that he turned to diaries he has kept from then to the present day.

Once everything was on paper, wife Dorothy, who has been an important part of his life for more than 45 years, made the first typewritten copy of well over 100 single-spaced pages. A granddaughter has now typed a second copy.

Recently I was entrusted with one of those copies and I couldn't put it down until I had read every page.

Allcock was born in Birmingham, England, in 1887; attended board school there until his 12th birthday; went to Birmingham School of Art on scholarship for another two years; did four years as an apprentice in a print shop and then learned to work with electric arc lamps, before far-off fields beckoned and he sailed for Canada in 1909.

He landed in Quebec, came west to Strathcona by immigrant train and then by an early bus route to Edmonton.

"It was a place of wooden sidewalks in those days," he writes. "The Grand Trunk Railway had only reached that far a year before; there was no CPR, they were building the Parliament Buildings, Jasper Avenue was deep in mud and the Hudson's Bay had the biggest store in town."

He also found an open air market where he saw his first moose meat on sale.

In the next couple of years he worked on pioneer ranches along the Saskatchewan River; as a teamster (with mules) and also as a flunkey in the cookhouse, on Grand Trunk construction west of Edson; and, during one winter hauled gravel from the river for the first CPR station in Edmonton, on Jasper Avenue.

That gravel, he writes, had to be thawed with special fires on the river bed, before it went to the building site.

As construction work moved farther on, Allcock moved with it, until he reached Tete Jeune Cache, which he described in his writings as "a wide open town of restaurants, gambling dens, Chinese laundries, stores, bootleggers and girls."

He hauled freight around there and to Fort George, 200 miles away on the Fraser River in northern British Columbia.

That was in 1913 and from then on many of his working years were spent in the Fort George-Quesnel area.

In those days most of the freight had to be delivered up there by scows with platforms at either end for huge sweeps, Allcock says.

Each scow was manned by four men, two to an end. "They used those sweeps as oars to keep the scows headed into the stream."

Someone always seemed to have a fiddle, a mandolin or an accordion, he remembers. "So there was music and singing as they floated by each other."

Allcock pre-empted land for a homestead on the river; worked on construction of what was then the Pacific Great Eastern (now the B.C. Railway) near Quesnel; helped build roads and bridges, and took a job, for a year, as cook to 40 men at the Paradise Mine near Invermere, owned by Randolph Bruce, later to be a Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia.

The mine was 8,000 feet up in the mountains,' he recalls, "and we had trouble at that altitude boiling water to cook the vegetables."

Lead miners had to drink lots of milk, and gallons were delivered to the mine every day.

Allcock's memoirs record — in detail — enough amazing happenings to fill a book. So you can understand it is impossible for me to give you more than a couple here.

At one time, with all his belongings on a raft, he was caught in a whirlpool near Quesnel, as he was on his way to his homestead.

"I found myself going around and around in a circle . . . and I had to paddle for my life to get free," he remembers.

None of his things were lost in those terrifying moments, except his hat . . ." and I retrieved that down stream, when I got out of the whirlpool."

On another occasion, as his crew was completing work on a bridge, an ice jam upstream broke, sending a flood of water down on the bridge.

"We just had time to gather our tools and run when the whole works was swept away."

Fortunately, everything ended up on a bank in the river," so we were able to get it back, put it all together again and finish the job."

In 1931, Allcock married Dorothy Stimpson, a Victoria girl who was teaching in that northern area and boarding at the McKay ranch, next to his homestead.

Three years later he was named provincial road superintendent for the North Cariboo district, with headquarters in Quesnel. Then, in 1941 he was appointed to the same position for the Lillooet district, with headquarters in the town of Lillooet.

It was from there, in 1952, that he retired and came to Victoria with his family.

Today, Bert and Dorothy Allcock live quietly in their Monterey Avenue home, where they are frequently visited by two sons, three daughters and 13 grandchildren.

"It is for them that I've written all this down," Allcock says as he thumbs through the pages of his "memories."

A mammoth task of which he can well be proud!

FLUSH OF LIFE

HAMILTON (CP) — Persons dying because their body temperature is too low can sometimes be revived by putting a tube into the abdomen and flushing it with warm solutions, says a city plastic surgeon.

Dr. R. W. Sorokolit told a recent meeting of family doctors at McMaster University Medical Centre that persons with low body temperatures, such as those who have fallen into icy water, have died because attempts were made to warm them from the outside with blankets.

Dr. Sorokolit said this caused them to die of shock because of chemical changes as the blood vessels near the surface changed from a constricted to an expanded state.

Most serious cases of cold injuries occur among alcoholics and those taking drugs who wander about in the cold and wet with inappropriate hand and foot coverings, he said.

Dr. Sorokolit said frostbitten areas should not be rubbed vigorously or thawed out until the person is in a place where he can stay warm.

On behalf of their policy holders, life insurance companies in Canada have invested more than 15 billion dollars in our economy. You will want to know your benefits as a policy holder and which category of life insurance best fits your needs.

The 24-page illustrated booklet "How To Live Happily With A Price On Your Head" explains that when you buy life insurance you are actually buying income replacement. Financial experts estimate that five times one's annual income is probably the minimum amount of life insurance anybody should carry.

The booklet also explains the four main types of life insurance. If none of these fit your specific requirements, most insurance companies offer a combination which they custom-tailor to your needs.

In addition, the booklet answers such important questions as: Will I get dividends from my insurance premium? What happens if I can't continue my premium payments? Can I change my policy if I change my mind? What about medical examinations?

Turning a Wallflower Into a Gardenia

Ask Jennifer

By JENNIFER ANDERSON

As the song goes, "Saturday night is the loneliest night of the week." If that's true for you, it's time to turn on a little glamor. You don't need classic beauty or a figure like Raquel Welch. You just need guts, pure and simple!

DEAR JENNIFER: I've always been very shy and reluctant to draw attention to myself with fancy hairdos or make-up. My friends say I could be pretty — whatever that means.

I did have a boyfriend, but we broke up, and I'd like to try a whole new me to see if I could get him back. Do you think that's silly? Could I do it? Will it work? — Mandy C.

The answers to your questions are no, yes, and without a crystal ball, who knows!

First of all, decide to make yourself over for yourself. That way you'll come out a winner no matter what happens. Granted, he did give you the push you needed to get going, but every beauty program needs motivation.

Developing real style and the guts to pull it off takes practice, and you can't bypass the basics.

Here are some tips on how to turn a wallflower into a gardenia:

Try to change anything that makes you self conscious.

—If you are overweight, then diet.

—Skin problems need professional help. Find a dermatologist.

—If you are afraid to smile, see a dentist.

—Posture problems need special exercise. Join a dance class.

—Get rid of habits like biting fingernails, twisting a lock of hair or swinging a foot. (They do nothing for a look of poise even though you might not feel it yet.)

After you have completed these steps, the next is forgetting about how you look and remembering to be interested in other people.

If you don't get the same boyfriend back, I'm sure you'll find a new one — and maybe two or three!

Rubbing Won't Help On Metallic Paint

By MICHAEL LAMM

Dear Mike: The paint on my 1971 Toyota is getting progessively duller. I've used several nationally advertised brands of waxes, and as a last resort I've used a pre-wax cleaner. How can I restore that original sheen? — NO FUN ANYMORE

Dear No Fun: If your Toyota has a metallic paint job, polishing and waxing can actually lead to dullness. That's because you're cutting through the enamel top coat and exposing the tiny aluminum flakes to the air. Aluminum, of course, corrodes. If your finish isn't metallic, though, I'd say you're not cutting through the "dead" paint. You might consider rubbing compound. And don't let anyone sell you one of those 'self-polishing' 'waxes. Unless you're waxing a brand-new car, they don't work.

Dear Mike: A couple of months ago, I put four new steel-belted radial tires on my 1972 Olds. At that time I overlooked the fact that my two snow tires on extra wheels are conventional, not radial. I've read since that radials and conventional tires don't mix. I phoned the tire store, and they told me this was poppycock — that the two types of tires ARE interchangeable. Have I bought myself a problem?—POPPY

Dear Poppy: Yes, because as you suspect, radials and conventional tires DON'T MIX. They make for unstable handling.

Dear Mike: Some time ago you wrote about decarbonizing the insides of cylinders and heads by "squirting a fine jet of water into the carburetor while running the engine at half throttle (in neutral, parking brake hard on.)" I'd like to try this on my 1968 Impala, but I have no idea whether to use two ounces or two gallons of water. Also, should I pour the water into the carburetor or squirt it through a hose? Please elaborate.—CARBONIZED.

Dear Carbonized: Poke a pencil hole in the bottom of a paper cup. Then put your finger over the hole and fill the cup with water. As you rev up your engine, let water flow from the cup. Be sure you don't kill the engine by releasing water too quickly. And a total of two cups of water should do it.

DEAR MIKE: I had a radiator hose break on my 1973 Grand Prix. My service station man installed a new hose and then put in a gallon of antifreeze and a can of anti-leak solution. I hadn't asked for these last two items, and the mechanic and I got into an argument. He said that antifreeze is good for a car even in the summer because it prevents rusting inside the engine block. The anti-leak stuff is to stop any little holes that might occur in the future. The total tab came to $21.76 for parts and labor, which I think is ridiculous. All I really wanted was a new hose. Please give me your opinion. —STEAMED

DEAR STEAMED: I go along with the man on the antifreeze but not on the anti-leak. A 50-50 solution of tea and antifreeze does keep down internal rusting and scaling. But anti-leak, even when you do have a pinhole in your radiator, often does more harm than good. It tends to clog narrow passages in the block, radiator, and heater core. You're better off soldering radiator leaks as they happen. The $21.76 sounds a bit steep, too, for what you got.

Tipping Problems

DEAR ABBY: About motel maids who never get tipped: I've been a motel maid for more years than I care to remember.

Would you believe a grown man wetting a bed? (No tip.) Or a 10-year-old boy who is a nightly bed-wetter whose mother doesn't have enough sense to carry a rubber sheet? I'll bet she has one on his bed at home. (No tip.)

And how about those men who read dirty books that cost from $2 to $20 each, but are so ashamed of what they read that they stick it under the mattress or behind the ice machine on their way out? (No tip.)

I'll take the polite Japanese people any time. They leave a dollar under their pillow daily, and their rooms are as clean when they leave as when they check in. — HAD IT.

DEAR HAD IT: A registered nurse registers a complaint. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A "motel maid" wrote you recently, begging for tips. She complained about changing bed linen, scrubbing bathrooms, picking up soiled towels and gathering trash thrown near but not in the trash can. She said an extra dollar would be appreciated for the dirty work she has to do.

I won't go into detail about what we hospital nurses have to do. I'll just say that we work up to our knees in the unappetizing byproducts of illness, infection and old age. And do we get tips? Of course not! We get a salary and do the job we're paid to do.

A housekeeper and a nurse's aid are paid salaries comparable to a hotel maid's. I don't know one fellow employee who would not be insulted if a tip were offered. And that goes for the orderlies and the kitchen and cafeteria help, too. — JUST AN R.N.

DEAR ABBY: Our wedding date is rapidly appeoaching, and we face a terrible problem. My fiancee's parents are paying for the entire wedding. As a resutlt they want to control everything (number of guests my family may invite, place for the wedding, etc.).

My parents are upset that they are not even being consulted. Please tell me whether it's proper for the groom's side to have a voice in wedding arrangements when the bride's parents are footing the whole bill. — CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR CAUGHT: In the spirit of parental detente, some joint negotiations would seem to be in order. To proceed otherwise is to invite ill feelings when joy should reign.

Electric Skillet Not Just Fryer

By HILDA BEASTALL

hilda beastall

Meals completely cooked in an electric skillet or frypan are not necessarily fried foods in the generally accepted sense, for almost every kind of preparation can be done in this adaptable piece of kitchenware. No fat is used in some and the food is steam-cooked; in others the pan supplies dry heat as in an oven.

If the skillet has a thermostat control, it is perfect for soup simmering, sauce making, rapid boiling or Chinese-type meals. Bread and buns can be toasted or reheated. Scones can be baked and all manner of pancakes and omelets conveniently cooked.

Planning is needed as in all labor saving and time saving schemes. It is the thinking ahead of the doing that saves later. When it comes to food preparation there can be a saving of money, too, by planning ahead.

One surprisingly good supper came out of the skillet in a recent session with it as an only means of meal preparation. It was the unlikely combination of small shell macaroni and young green fall cabbage and other fresh green leaves. When served it looked good with the color contrasts, tasted good and was most satisfying. Here it is for you to try.

CREAMED MACARONI SKILLET

½ cup small shell macaroni
4 cup wheat flakes
½ tsp salt
1½ cups boiling water (approx.)
2 tbsp soft margarine
1 tbsp fine sliced onion
2 cups thinly sliced cabbage or swiss chard and kale mixed
½ cup thinly sliced carrots
4 tbsp skim milk powder
3 tbsp wheat bran (bulk)
3 tbsp wheat germ
2 tbsp brewer's yeast (torula)
few grains each of curry, ginger and paprika
¼ cup grated Cheddar cheese

In the skillet cook macaroni and oat flakes in enough salted boiling water to be absorbed in about 20 minutes. Put into a basin and keep it warm.

In the skillet now melt margarine; cook onion until it is yellowed and soft. Add carrots, cabbage, chard and kale leaves all thinly sliced.

When vegetables are just about cooked, move them to sides of pan. Then spoon macaroni mixture into centre to reheat.

Set thermostat at low for reheating, about 5 minutes.

Sprinkle grated cheese on top. Serves 3 or 4.

A vegetable skillet sauce to serve with a dish of reheated cooked brown rice takes about 20 minutes to prepare and cook.

VEGETABLE SAUCE WITH BROWN RICE

3 tbsp soft margarine
¾ cup sliced onions
1 cup chopped tomato (canned)
2 cups grated carrot
2 cups frozen peas or green beans
¾ tsp salt
few grains curry and paprika
water to cover
2 Tbsp. chopped fresh parsley, chervil or kale
4 cups cooked brown rice

Heat margarine in skillet until bubbling. Add onions and cook until yellow and soft. Add tomato, carrots, peas or beans (or mixes), salt and seasoning. Cover with water (or vegetable stock saved from previous cooking). Set to high heat to boil; then reduce to simmering for 15 minutes until carrots are becoming tender and sauce is thickening.

Push vegetables to sides of pan. Spoon in cooked brown rice; cover to reheat. Do not stir.

Serve over crisp toast if desired. Serves 4 or 5.

Toast is made in a dry electric skillet at a setting around 177 deg.C. Turn slices frequently so they lose moisture quickly and become crisp all through. Set toast aside. The hot mixture poured over it will heat it but the crispness remains. Sprinkling each slice with a tablespoon wheat germ and a teaspoon of brewer's yeast upgrades the total food value of the meal.

It is like learning a new skill to learn the use of an electric skillet (or frypan), and as with most new skills we must first have interest in the results.

The thick soup listed in cookbooks under the fancy Italian name Minestrone contains many kinds of vegetables and is thickened with spaghetti or macaroni. Grated Parmesan cheese is sprinkled over the top.

Although it reduces the authenticity of the dish, a little Canadian Cheddar cheese can be substituted. A few diced pieces of smoked jowl will give a fine flavor, though salt pork or bacon is often used.

This is a long simmering process of around 2 hours for a wonderful blend of flavors. List of ingredients seems long, but don't wory if you lack one or two of the vegetables; substitutes can be made as suggested.

MINESTRONE

½ cup diced smoked pork jowl
4 small garlic cloves, whole
1 medium onion, sliced
1 cup red beans, soys or limas, soaked overnight
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 cup mixed shredded cabbage and kale
1 cup diced potatoes
½ cup diced celery and leaves
½ cup chopped spinach or chard
2 Tbsp. chopped parsley
salt, chili powder, curry ½ cup macaroni, small cut grated Canadian Cheddar cheese

Heat skillet to 149 deg.C. Partially cook diced jowl, then add onion and garlic to cook until yellow and soft.

Add drained beans which have soaked overnight. Add next six vegetables and about six cups boiling water. Cover and simmer (barely bubbling) for 1½ hours until beans are tender.

Now add macaroni and the seasonings, and simmer altogether for another half hour.

Spoon into soup plates, sprinkle with cheese. Serves 5 or 6.

Amount of liquid may need adjusting to make the quantity. Use tomato juice or saved vegetable stock, heated in a separate small pan if more is needed. Then add to skillet and stir well.

This is a fine inexpensive meal. Serve it to friends with your own make of wholewheat or rye bread.

Follow it with fruit and homemade plain yogurt. No need for apologies when serving a meal made in the electric skillet. NOTE: Minestrone and the other recipes may be prepared in regular pans on any kind of range.

More Rights for Step-Parents Considered by Family Lawyers

TORONTO (CP) — A law professor from McGill University said Saturday there is a movement within legal circles to give more status to the step-parent.

Professor Alastair Bissett-Johnson told a seminar on the child and the courts, sponsored by the law faculty of University of Toronto, that this new status might be achieved, "short of cutting the child off from his natural parent."

He said that in England, which now has a new adoption act, when the step-parent applies to adopt his wife's children by a prior marriage, the court involved will see if "it would not be more appropriate" to send the case back to the divorce court to alter the custody arrangements rather than arranging formal adoption.

Professor Bisset-Johnson said the thinking is "that at the time of the divorce an order for custody of those children will have been made."

He said that when the case is remitted to the divorce court, if it "deems it appropriate," will include the step-father in the custody arrangements so he will have legal rights of custody.

"These rights will include having a say in the everyday decisions in a child's life, which school he goes to, medical treatment, where he spends his time and consent to marriage."

Professor Bisset-Johnson said that "there would be no right to give consent to adoption or to change the child's surname."

Judge Irwin Cantor of the conciliation court, Superior Court of the State of Arizona, said that the most bitter of all contested legal actions is the custody fight.

"The separation process is essentially the same for all members of the family," he said, "even though the specific losses differ."

"Divorce never eliminates a parent. It only changes the family structure," Judge Cantor added. "For better or for worse, a child never loses a parent totally."

"For the sake of the child, to have a decent divorce is just as important as to have a decent marriage."

Judge Cantor said that as an alternative to custody litigation a counselling program "would be more effective and socially more desirable than the presently used investigatory process."

He said that "the best interests of the child can best be determined on the basis of objective independent evidence" as to what those interests are.

"If one party is a parent and the other party a non-parent there is usually no question that the custody will go to the parent unless he is unfit."

Judge Cantor said the term "unfit" has come to mean moral unfitness.

"There is now a movement to abolish the dominant parental right doctrine," he said. "If this is done the facts of the child's needs will be considered first, rather than parental unfitness or fitness.

"Thus, a child could be treated less like the parents' property and more as an individual."

Dr. Olive Stone of the London School of Economics stressed the need for children in custody cases to have some type of representation on their own behalf.

"In particular, I would like to see the present hesitancy about the court interviewing the child separately swept aside.

"It would in all cases be essential either to make it clear to the child that whatever he said would be made known to his parents or, as I would prefer, that his privacy would be unequivocally ensured."

Professor Donald MacDougall of the law faculty, University of British Columbia, said he was concerned that campaigns to initiate a children's code or bill of rights for children "may divert attention from more limited, but quite practical proposals."

"In the past the law has not served children well," he said. "It has protected adult interests, rather than the interests of children."

Prof. MacDougall said the law should do more in the fields of child abuse and juvenile delinquency.

"But our primary concern must be to strengthen and support the family," he said. "There are not enough lawyers, psychiatrists or social workers available to cope with the problems that will arise if our basic family structure is unable to survive."

BLACKS BACK GAMES

EDMONTON (CP) — The 1978 Commonwealth Games will go ahead as scheduled with significant participation by black Commonwealth countries in Africa, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson said Sunday.

"I've met with a number of national leaders during the last two months," he told a news conference, "and I'm optimistic that the games will go ahead and there will be widespread representation from all parts of the Commonwealth."

Jamieson, in Edmonton for a federal Liberal Party fund-raising dinner, said he believes the Commonwealth members are anxious to have the games go ahead and be successful, avoiding another rift in Commonwealth relations.

The black African countries appear anxious to co-operate with Canada to ensure that the event is not plagued with racial argument, he said.

Such countries as Nigeria want New Zealand, especially, to show its opposition to South African apartheid "and there have been some conciliatory moves by New Zealand already."

Clark Against Separatists, But Confident in Levesque

MONTREAL (CP) — Federal Opposition Leader Joe Clark said Sunday he remains fundamentally opposed to the separatist aims of the Parti Quebecois, but added there was no reason for Canadians to panic at the PQ victory in last week's Quebec election.

"Since winning power, Mr. Rene Levesque has . . . said he will respect the democratic process by not opting for independence before the question is put to the population in the form of a referendum," Clark said.

Speaking to about 1,200 members of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party, Clark expressed confidence in Quebec's new premier and said he is looking forward to meeting Levesque to discuss policy.

"For any initiative he and his colleagues may take to promote independence, he will find me a steadfast and dedicated opponent," Clark said.

"But in any effort he and his government may take within the Canadian framework to improve the lives of Quebecers, he will have my understanding and, where warranted, my support."

Canadians should face reality and recognize that the PQ won the election fairly, Clark said.

Canadian Press Ratifies Contract

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Press and Broadcast News Ltd., and members of Local 213, the Canadian Wire Service Guild, Sunday ratified a three-year contract.

Earlier Sunday the Guild announced that 72 per cent of those voting on the contract agreed on last week voted in favor. The vote was tabulated nationally although members in two cities voted to reject the contract.

CP is the national newsgathering co-operative. Broadcast News is an affiliated company serving private television and radio stations.

The contract was worked out through the mediation efforts of senior officials of the federal labor department after a series of rotating strikes and work stoppages that affected CP-BN operations in all major cities.

The contract calls for a wage increase of nine per cent in 1976, 8½ per cent in 1977 and 7½ per cent in 1978. Base rate for a five-year reporter-editor will rise to $401.75 Jan. 1, 1978, from $316 as of Dec. 31, 1975.

On the controversial issue of guild security, the mediators succeeded in getting both sides to agree to non-revocable dues checkoff.

The guild was certified Sept. 17, 1975, and negotiations took almost a year.

About 275 employees of the national newsgathering co-operative are included in the bargaining unit, about 70 per cent of whom are Guild members.

A JOB . . . OR AN OPPORTUNITY?

There is a difference. In a job you're putting yourself in someone else's hands to decide when you should be promoted — how much you should earn — where and when you work. But in an opportunity you make the decisions. You decide when you want to work; how much you want to make; where you want to work.
AND THAT'S WHAT WE OFFER AT INVESTORS—AN OPPORTUNITY, because you'll be an independent business man — running your own operation. We help get you started and provide the rewards and incentives to help keep you going. But it's your business. You'll decide your hours of work. And your income will be directly related to your productivity. We'd like to look you over and you could do the same—no obligation, no commitment — just a pretty interesting opportunity. Late Rain Brought Good News

When the rain finally came last week, many gardeners were known to say how good it was to feel the quiet moisture. That the rain was gentle could be seen by the reaction of nature as a whole. No bashing down of branches; broad leaves of evergreens held a wet surface for hours, and no bouncing of drops on soil surfaces. The drops just soaked in, giving maximum benefit from a light total of rainfall.

Benefits have been numerous. Leaf fall from deciduous trees has been hastened, with views opening up again that were almost forgotten since spring burgeoning. Laurels, rhodos, ivies and other shrubs seem renewed in freshness as wide leaves were gently cleaned of dust and other city grime. They appear so much healthier with their shining winter coats.

Queen of them all, the gold and green Elaeagnus pungens aureo maculata, gleams with new life, particularly on dull days.

The gardener who divided early summer perennials by late September will get much satisfaction from lifting one or two new divisions to glory in the mass of new roots.

As a child, every adult gardener of long experience used this method of judging progress in treasured plants. Indeed, it does no harm and gives confirmation of well-being as judged from above soil growth. It compares with the grower of potted plants who knocks off the pot to inspect conditions at root level.

It is a bit more tricky to find out how daffodil bulbs are faring in the moist soil, but a careful gardener may want to lift just one for the pleasure of seeing the mass of roots formed since planting in September.

If you were one of the skeptics who reluctantly planted biennials September first, you will see the fine growth they have made. Wallflowers, Brompton stocks and the others will not have been disturbed by the gentle rain of last week, the roots will be massive, and top growth will be bigger and better than ever.

It is when pelting rain is followed by hard frost that we get the worst loosening of soil around stems and roots of newly set plants. One year of devastating pounding rain, several hundred transplants were loosened and left bare to frost which came immediately following the rain. All we could do then was to take a dry soil mixture from the greenhouse and cover each set of roots with a half shovelful from each side of the rows. Some plants were saved; many were lost that year.

Another benefit of the quiet rain can be seen on patches of bare ground that had been dug in preparation for sowing. The soil from below was quite dry. Lumps of hard soil with clay were not easily broken, but now they can be cracked down with a shovel and are ready to mix in with the renewing soil from the compost heap.

The birds obviously liked the rain as did the plants. Crows and starlings just sat around preening as though they hadn't enjoyed a bath for weeks. Seagulls wheeled and soared as always when it's raining.

Even house pets sat outside more cheerfully than usual in rain, seeming to enjoy the quiet humidity penetrating furry coats.

Perhaps we humans also liked it better than some would admit. Only the real rain lovers dared to say "Isn't this rain lovely!", not as a question to be answered but as a statement of fact.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call:

Animal-Quake Link Under Study

By THOMAS O'TOOLE
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Dogs barked uncontrollably . . . cattle in barns bellowed and tore at their chains . . . deer flocked down from the mountains, crowding together as if in terrible fright.

Caged birds flew amok, hammering against their wire prisons. Cuckoos cried out in the fields, sounds never heard at night. Fowl refused to roost and made such a din that farmers thought their henhouses had been stormed by foxes. Rats and mice left their holes and ran free because all the cats had fled the vilage for the countryside.

Bizarre as it seems, these things happened hours before an earthquake devastated northern Italy last spring, leading many scientists around the world to believe that taking note of strange animal behavior may be one way to forecast an earthquake.

"Animal behavior as a means of predicting earthquakes must now be taken very seriously," said Dr. Frank Press, chairman of Massachusetts Institute of Technology's department of earth and planetary science and a member of the national science board. "I think the whole geophysical community now wants some serious research done in this field."

Earthquake prediction is an infant but an important new bainchild of science. The quake in Italy took more than 1,000 human lives and left 70,000 homeless. So far this year, 47 major earthquakes have killed at least 132,000 people, the worst year for earthquake fatalities since 1923 when an earthquake killed 143,000 people in Tokyo alone.

Five years ago, no one believed that animal behavior could be used to predict earthquakes. The tide swung last year when the Chinese got thousands of people out of their homes two days before a major earthquake shook the ground around Haiching.

Dr. Berry Raleigh of the U.S. geological survey in Menlo Park, Calif., and recept visitor to China to observe their practices, said, "There also appears little doubt that animal behavior strongly influenced their prediction."

Days before the Haiching quake, scientists in China told Raleigh, people living in northern China near Haiching noticed strange changes in the behavior of their domestic, farm and zoo animals.

Chickens refused to roost, trained police dogs refused commands, barnyard geese began to fly, snakes swarmed out of their holess and even fish burrowed through the ice in an attempt to escape their lake-bottom homes.

There were changes in the earth near Haiching before the February, 1975 quake. Water in wells began to rise. There was an increase in the radioactive gas called radon in the well water. Seismologists measured new tilts to the hills around Haiching, and small foreshocks rattled the earth a few days before the animals acted bizarrely.

"The animals did it," said Harvard University's Dr. Bernard Bodiansky, one of a growing number of geophysicists attempting experiments in earthquake prediction. "The real basis for the Chinese earthquake prediction was animal behavior."

China has been in the forefront of earthquake prediction since 1966, when a major quake south of Peking killed thousands of people and the late Mao Tse-tung ordered his scientists to make accurate earthquake forecasting a national goal.

Scientists in China have told visiting Americans they have predicted at least 11 major earthquakes, including one near Peking seven years ago when scientists noticed that the pandas animal in the Peking zoo performed a curious, circular dance just before the quake.

How many quakes the Chinese failed to predict or predicted inaccurately is not known. No one in China expected the quake that struck Tangshan and killed 100,000 people last July. Chinese seismologists concede they've sounded many false alarms where they predicted earthquakes and evacuated cities for an earthquake that never came.

The earthquake forecasting program in China involves 5,000 seismologists preaching predicting methods to an estimated 1 million persons, who spend part of every day making countryside observations for the seismologists.

Farmers in many towns measure well levels, then report them to seismologists who produce a contour map showing changes in the water level. Students go out twice a day with electroscopes to measure the radon level in wells and springs. Thousands of people watch their animals for signs of strange behavior they can report.

"There are a lot more animals in this world than there are going to be instruments," said the California Institute of Technology's Clarence Allen, another American geologist who has been to China. "If the the Chinese say they can use them, then more power to them. I am no longer willing to dismiss animal effects."

Allen says animals are more sensitive to physical effects than are humans or instruments.

"We know dogs hear better and we know birds can feel the slightest vibrations," Allen said. "So why shouldn't they respond to changes in the earth if there are such changes taking place before an earthquake?"

West German biophysicist Helmut Tributch visited a village in the Italian Alps that was struck by two earthquakes this spring.

Tributch found reports of animal behavior preceding the first quake, including stories that cats dragged their kittens out of houses and that cattle tried to bolt from their barns. He also talked to a watchmaker who told him he was unable to place a thin stainless steel part in a wristwatch because something seemed to be pushing it away. Less than an hour later, the earthquake hit.

The German biophysicist has told American geologists he thinks the rock under the earth begins to be squeezed so tightly just before an earthquake that it causes electrostatic changes in the crust. Tributch also said the aerosols in the air literally become charged with electricity before a quake, which makes animals hair stand on end.

American geologists suspect that as the rocks are squeezed by earthquake forces, they drive out radioactive ground water, which rises to the surface. The water is ionized, charging the aerosols in the air with static electricity. These geologists say the matchmaker couldn't fix the watch because electrostatic forces repelled the tiny part he tried to put in just before the quake.

Evidence is gathering in the United States that animals can be used to predict quakes. After a Thanksgiving Day, 1974 earthquake near Hollister, Calif., geologists visted a ranch whose owner told strange tales about her horses. One fell down, another refused to eat, and a colt she'd trained refused to be led out of a pasture. Hours later, the earth quaked.

Ruth Simon, a geologist with the U.S. geological survey in Denver, has placed refrigerated cages in three locations along the San Andreas Fault in California and put cockroaches in the cages.

"The cages have supersensors on the floors which record every movement the cockroaches make," Simon said. "Any disturbance in the cyclic rhythym that cockroaches are accustomed to will disturb their behavior."

Why cockroaches? Because they've survived on earth for 250 million years, are very adaptive, very sensitive, will stay in a small area and can go without food and water for five months, she said.

SPECIAL MENTION
ROAD & TRACK

"If it were the standard car in America, most of our automotive problems would disappear," we said in our February road test of the CVCC. We were praising its small size and high fuel economy, among other things, but what we want to honor here is the positive way in which Honda went about meeting the 1975 pollution standards. Instead of complaining that it couldn't be done and, when it had to be done anyway, adopting a questionable hang-on device, Honda went to work on the source, the engine itself. Working with an age-old principle, that of the stratified charge, Honda brought it to a new level of perfection and made it a thoroughly practical everyday proposition. Most of the industry probably will follow Honda.

Englishman River Lots Plan Revised

NANAIMO — Alton Land Corp. has made what it says is its final offer to break a four-year impasse with the Nanaimo Region Board and develop land near the Englishman River.

Alton wants the board to approve reduced zoning allowing it to divide its 1,200-acre parcel into five-acre lots.

Andrew McGregor, president of Alton, says in a letter to the region board that in return for the approved zoning it would dedicate for public use a 100-foot strip along Englishman River and Morrison Creek.

McGregor said some of the lots would also be larger than five acres and promised development would occur in stages to reduce the impact of sudden growth on the community.

Alton already has conditional approval from the highways department for a subdivision of 12-acre lots with land along the river and creek retained in a single 308-acre parcel.

Cyclone Hits

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — At least 29 people have died in the second cyclone this month to hit India's east coast at Andhra Pradesh state, Samachar news agency reported Saturday.

Ricky, centre, back home with family

Thanks, Saltspring, Says Ricky

GANGES (CP) — Eleven-year-old Ricky Andrews came home from the Mayo Clinic Saturday after 2½ months of radiation treatments for the bone cancer that threatens his life and said thanks to his Salt Spring Island friends who made the treatments possible.

Ricky, a sports enthusiast who has cancer in the bone of his upper right arm, said in an interview Sunday he's feeling well and wants to thank the people who raised $11,000 to send him to the clinic, in Rochester, Minn.

"Thanks, thanks, thanks, to everybody," said the Gulf Islands youngster. "Everything went real well and I'm feeling fine."

Ricky spent the weekend watching football on television and playing with his brother Jack, 10, and sister Michele, 6. He finds out today whether or not he'll be going back to school full-time — but he's not pushing the matter.

"I'm just taking it easy."

Ricky's fight for life started about a year ago when he came home from pitching a baseball game complaining of a sore arm. His parents thought he'd pulled a tendon, but several months later the pains cropped up again.

Ricky's doctor diagnosed bone cancer, and a few days later the family drove him to the Mayo Clinic. The clinic confirmed the diagnosis and launched the youngster on a program of radiation therapy.

The boy's mother, Lyn Andrews, who stayed with him at the clinic, said Ricky underwent six weeks of daily radiation treatments.

"He was very, very brave during the treatments," said Mrs. Andrews.

Ricky now is on a drug treatment program and he'll return to the clinic in January for a checkup and another round of treatments.

"It will be six months at least before we know for sure how he's responding," said Mrs. Andrews. "He's fully aware of how serious his condition is and what the treatments are for."

Ricky's father Dennis, an oiler with B.C. Ferries, said he picked the Mayo Clinic because three other relatives have been successfully treated there for similar problems.

Andrews said similar treatment is available in B.C. so it is doubtful the family will be able to recover the costs of having their child treated at Mayo, rated one of the best medical centres in the world.

Thirteen specialists have seen Ricky at the clinic.

"They didn't pull any punches," said Andrews. "They talked about life and death with us right in front of Ricky."

Island residents and community groups have pitched in with a vareity of fund-raising events. The Rod and Gun Club staged a skeet shoot, the Lions and Rotary clubs a Las Vegas night, and the Salt Spring Golf Club canvassed its members for $1,500.

Australian Cyclone Aid Drunk Away

DARWIN (Reuter) — The mayor of Darwin, the northern Australian city devastated by a cyclone on Christmas Day, 1974, said Sunday that much of the $8.5 million raised internationally for the victims has either been gambled away or spent on drink.

"I know that's a hard and nasty thing to say to people who have given money — but those are the facts," said Mayor Ella Stack, deputy chairman of the now-defunct Cyclone Tracey Relief Fund.

She said much of the money paid in direct grants to Darwin residents went to persons who were not in real need, and that "some people cheated; some people gave false names."

AUDITOR'S REPORT SCATHING

Ottawa Spending 'Out of Control'

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government spending is sliding completely out of control and a chief financial officer should be appointed as a first step toward restoring stability, Auditor-General J.J. Macdonell said Monday.

This year's report by Parliament's spending watchdog is a scathing indictment about government spending controls. It is part of a continuing review of spending controls initiated in 1974.

"I am deeply concerned that, on the evidence of the two-year examination . . . Parliament— and indeed the government— has lost or is close to losing effective control of the public purse," Mr. Macdonell says in the opening paragraph of his 630-page report tabled in the Commons by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald.

The government, in an apparent effort to soften the stinging criticism of the report, immediately announced the appointment of a royal commission to study ways of making the public service more accountable for its handling of taxpayers' money.

Mr. Macdonell calls current financial management practices "grossly inadequate" and says the situation now has become "critically serious." It will continue so without immediate remedial action, he says.

He suggests that the current situation has developed because of non-implementation of recommendations made in 1962 by the Glassco Commission to strengthen controls over spending.

"Control over public funds, deteriorating for at least the last 15 years," he says. This covers the period beginning with the government of Progressive Conservative John Diefenbaker and including six Liberal governments— three of the late Lester Pearson and three of Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Mr. Macdonell's key recommendation is for a chief financial officer, preferably called the comptroller general of Canada, with the same status as a deputy minister and reporting to the president of the treasury board. This individual—highly qualified and recognized as such by the government, accounting bodies and the auditor-general —would create a program for restoring effective spending control.

The auditor-general's report contains the usual examples of government waste and mismanagement, including $828,000 for the purchase and refitting of a ship that was declared unfit for navigation. But the over-all indictment of spending controls overshadowed these.

A heavy turnout of voters in Saturday's municipal elections was a mixed blessing for some veteran local politicians in B.C.

Among the casualties on Vancouver Island was Kay Grouhel, mayor of Ladymith, who had her hope for re-election to a seventh term dashed by former alderman Robert Wilson Stuart.

Also, Ken Forde, trying for his seventh term as mayor of Campbell River, was defeated by Tom Barnett, former New Democratic Party MP.

Another Island mayor defeated was Gerry Furney of Port McNeil. He lost by one vote to Mas Nishiyama.

These were three of the 24 mayoralty seats up for grabs in a so-called off-year election.

However, ignoring the record books, 42 per cent of the eligible B.C. voters turned out. The vote during off-year balloting is usually below 40 per cent.

Veteran Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney won easy re-election and in an interesting aldermanic race in Duncan, Dennis Alphonse, former Cowichan band chief, tied for second and won one of three seats.

The heavy turnout at the polls may have been due to the generally sunny skies or to a change in Section 80a of the Municipal Act.

The amendment, in effect for the first time this election, permits those not on the voters list to go to a poll, swear they are valid voters, and cast ballots.

In Massett on the Queen Charlotte Islands, section 80a was seen as the cause of a voting peculiarity in which there were 620 votes cast although there were only 410 registered voters.

Included in the list of veteran incumbents who lost favor with the electorate was Ron Andrews, chairman of the Greater Vancouver Regional District. He was upset in a bid for a sixth term as mayor of North Vancouver district by Ald. Don Bell.

Mayor Ceal Tingley, long-time mayor of the central interior town of Quesnel ran last in a three-man race that was won by John Panagrot.

Stay of Prosecution Infuriates Indians

Times News Services

VANDERHOOF — Stoney Creek Indians have asked Attorney-General Garde Gardom to lift a stay of proceedings against the prosecution of a driver whose car hit and killed a pregnant Indian woman.

The stay is "almost as disturbing as the accident itself" the Stoney Creek Indian Homemakers Association said.

Regional Crown counsel Arthur Cook entered the stay Thursday on a charge of criminal negligence against Rickhard Redekop, 22, of Vanderhoof, whose car hit and killed Coreen Thomas July 3. The charge had been laid by Miss Thomas's father.

A coroner's jury found the death accidental but said Redekop was negligent because he drove too fast through a crowd of people.

"Cook, by taking the action he did with no consultation with the complainant (Thomas), with any of the people of Stoney Creek or with the Thomas family lawyer, appears to be telling us that Indians are still second-class citizens who cannot expect justice in white man's courts," said Helen Jones, secretary of the Stoney Creek Indian Homemakers' Association.

Miss Jones asked Gardom to instruct the prosecutor to reverse his decision.

She made her letter public after a meeting of about 60 Indians and whites at this central interior community of 2,000 was told Saturday by the British Columbia Indian Homemakers' Association that it was very upset about the stay of proceedings.

Barbara Kobierski of Vancouver, representing the homemakers' Association, told the meeting the Indians would like to see justice applied to them also.

The meeting was arranged by the homemakers assocation to discuss problems existing between native and white cultures.

OTTAWA SILENT ON TEST

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Ottawa's silence over the results of atmospheric tests to determine the presence of radioactive particles in the wake of last week's Chinese nuclear explosion has been rapped by a spokesman for Environment Canada here.

British Columbians could die from the effect of radioactive fallout before they knew what was hitting them, he claimed.

"We have been taking daily filter samples for the health department in Ottawa but they never let us know what the results are," he added.

A spokesman for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said there have been no significant increases in radiation readings and that increases that were noted were not serious.

The readings were made as a huge cloud of radioactive debris billowed across the U.S. after crossing the Pacific Ocean following the explosion.

The northern boundary of the radiation cloud extended to central British Columbia.

3-Year Contract For Vic Press

Victoria Press Ltd. and five newspaper unions have reached agreement on a three-year contract retroactive to Dec. 1, 1975.

The employees had been working under an interim contract covering the seven-month period between Dec. 1, 1975 and July 1, 1976.

Agreement was reached not to have any increase in salary during that period and so the salary provisions of the new agreement are retroactive to July 1, 1976.

The salary increases are 8 per cent in the first year, 12 per cent in the second, in three stages, and two per cent in the final year.

For those in the Newspaper Guild the key classification rate after five years retroactive to July 1, is $341.37, an increase over the existing rate of $316.08.

The other increases are $355.02, Dec. 1; $369.22, July 1, 1977; $383.99, Dec. 1, 1977, and $391.67 on July 1, 1978.

The rates for journeyman in the craft unions are a couple of dollars less.

Bridget Petersen, spokesman for the guild, said today the guild members voted 96 per cent in favor of ratification.

She said there was also a good majority in support from the other unions — the International Typographical Union, mailers, pressmen and stereotypers unions.

"We feel it is the best possible contract in light of the company's financial position and in light of the Anti-Inflation Board guidelines," Petersen said.

Company general-manager Jack Melville said he was pleased the negotiations were resolved.

He said he doesn't foresee any problems with the AIB and the company will proceed with the wage increases without waiting for a ruling from the federal body.

Petersen said there is some concern about the 8 per cent increase in the second year but added the AIB may approve it in light of the unions' agreement to relax some of the restrictive technological change language.

SOCCER FANS RIOT, STAB

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuter) — Three persons were taken to hospital with serious stab wounds after crowd violence Sunday at a soccer match between Nottingham Forest and Chelsea.

Nine fans were stabbed in fighting that broke out in the fourth minute of the game.

Chiclet Plant Explodes

NEW YORK (AP) — A 34-year-old Brooklyn man, injured Sunday when an explosion and fire ripped through the American Chiclet gum factory in the borough of Queens, died in hospital today.

Hospital officials said Samuel Aeyekum, one of 55 workers injured in the blast, died from burns to 95 per cent of his body.

The explosion ripped through four floors of the building, spewing steel, concrete and molten gum into the street.

One fireman on the scene said it was a miracle that none of the 150 people working the all-night shift was killed immediatley by the blast early Sunday. Witnesses said the force of the explosion hurled some of the victims to the street.

About 25 persons were burned severely.

"It was really horrible; I saw men with their clothing and skin burned off," said Chris Boggio, 19, a helper at the plant. "The blast threw me clean across the room."

The aroma of spearmint filled the air, and hot gum stuck to the boots of firemen battling the blaze.

Fire marshals, sifting through the debris in the six-storey brick structure in the Long Island City section of Queens, said a stray spark may have ignited combustible dust, causing the blast.

Only 11% Favor Separate Quebec—Poll

Times News Services

The number of Quebecers who favor separation has declined from 18 per cent before last Monday's election which brought the Parti Quebecois to power to just 11 per cent.

The decline was noted by two McGill University professors in polls conducted for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The two sociologists made their first sampling of 1,500 representative voters throughout that province midway through the election campaign and the second sampling of the same people Wednesday and Friday of last week.

One of the two, Professor Maurice Pinard, said he feels the victory by the separatist Parti Quebecois in the Nov. 15 election may have reduced radical sentiment, if only temporarily.

The Parti Quebecois received 41 per cent of the popular vote to win 69 seats in the 110-seat Quebec Assembly.

In the poll, 1,530 persons throughout Quebec were telephoned at random and 1,088 provided responses.

The CBC, which will broadcast the poll tonight on its News Magazine program, says the poll is the first scientific sampling of public opinion within Quebec since the election.

Meanwhile, federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Sunday that it would be better to break up the country than to favor Quebec with special status within the federal system.

For the federal government to give one province a special status is not realistic, he said.

In a transcript of a radio interview broadcast on the CBC program Sunday Morning, Lalonde said Parliament must remain committed to a system whereby Quebec MPs have no more power to legislate than members from other regions of Canada.

A diversion from that system, he said, "would be the first sep towards complete separation."

In Montreal, Levesque said today that the Quebec national assembly will hold a short session before Christmas to adopt a supplementary provincial budget and expedite some urgent matters.

He made the announcement after a weekend caucus meeting.

247,000 Acres in Mexico Turned Over to Peasants

CIUDAD OBREGON, Mexico (WP) — In one of his fiercest confrontations with the conservative establishment, President Luis Echeverria has ordered appropriation of vast holdings in Mexico's most fertile valley on behalf of landless peons and migrant workers.

Even as government officials distributed copies of the presidential enabling decrees, peasant leaders acting on orders from the government moved almost 24,000 people onto lands staked out for the last eight days.

As a result, the title 247,000 acres of agricultural and grazing land, owned by 74 families, have now been handed over to 8,000 peasant families.

There is to be no compensation, as the owners were found to be holding the land illegally.

The expropriation comes just days before the Mexican president ends his six-year-term, during which he has often promised to improve the lot of Mexico's 28 million peasants and has committed himself to providing plots to the millions of landless.

The fact that Echeverria adopted this and other important economic and political measures so close to the end of his term has caused much uncertainty in Mexico.

Outgoing presidents normally cede power gradually to their successor in their final months. Echeverria has proved to be an unusually strong lame duck.

In recent months he has even devalued the peso twice — the first times since 1954.

Outside this city, in the sweeping Yaqui Valley which stretches from the Pacific coast to the Sierra Madre mountains, the peasants have moved their ramshackle camps onto the freshly stilled earth they now own.

They have planted the red flags of their movement and women are heating tortillas and soup on simple log fires in the burning sun.

"I have been working other people's land since I was 8, and I can't believe I have my own now," said Manuel Gutierrez, 50, who with 68 others had been camping out on the bank of an irrigation canal for more than a week.

This enormous valley provides Mexico with almost half of its wheat and cotton and is considered one of Mexico's two most productive agricultural zones. The rush now is to safeguard the multi-million-dollar winter harvest.

Meanwhile, Conservative businessmen and landowners have laid plans for a nationwide strike to protest the hand over.

In this town of 250,000 some 350 miles south of the U.S. border, representatives of business groups co-ordinating the strike said they have received support from 30 towns and cities, including the industrial centres of Monterrey, Puebla and Guadalajara.

The strike is to begin Wednesday, one week before the new president, Jose Lopez Portillo, is to take over from Echeverria.

★ EXCHANGE SUSPENDED

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican central bank suspended the sale and purchase of all foreign currencies and gold today after an apparent run on dollars by Mexicans worried about their country's economic future.

After being pegged for 22 years at 12.50 to the U.S. dollar, the peso has lost about half its value since Aug. 22 when President Luis Echeverria's administration allowed it to float to its own level on international money markets.

It was trading at about 24 to the dollar Friday in Mexico and was quoted at a range of 27 to 30 in New York today.

The devaluation and rumors of possible nationalization of private Mexican banks are thought to have set off a flurry of dollar purchases by Mexicans concerned about inflation and econofic insecurity.

The Banco de Mexico said "excessive conversions" of pesos into foreign currency has created "disorderly situations that have seriously altered the exchange market."

"Beginning Nov. 22 and until further notice, credit institutions will abstain from buying and selling foreign money and gold," the bank said. However, dollars would still be accepted for debts to banks and other financial institutions.

At Benito Juarez International Airport outside Mexico City, banks were refusing to sell pesos to tourists. A black market operation cropped up, and some tourists bought pesos at 26 to a dollar, one newspaper reported.

CANBERRA (AP) — Australia plans to boost penalties for drug trafficking to a maximum 25 years in jail and a $130,000 fine, John Howard, business and consumer affairs minister, said Sunday. He said legislation will be introduced in February to increase penalties for trafficking in all drugs except marijuana from the present maximum 10 years in jail and a $5,200 fine.

Cash Flow Puts Loan In Jeopardy

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's domestic money supply, a key factor in the country's battle with inflation, is still rising higher than the target set by the Labor government, the Bank of England disclosed today.

Despite heavy restrictions on credit, the amount of money in circulation jumped 1¼ per cent in the month of mid-October.

The government's aim has been to hold money supply growth to 12 per cent in the financial year beginning last April.

But with half the year gone, money in circulation already has increased 8¾ per cent.

Tight money control is believed to be one of the factors on which inspectors from the International Monetary Fund are insisting as a condition

Glazier Takes Lead In Regional Vote

The race for the two regional director seats in Saturday's elections was complicated by the fact the directors must be sitting aldermen.

Murray Glazier topped the polls and was sent back to board, but Ald. Bob Ellis, who placed second in the regional district race and William McElroy who was third, did not win board seats because they were not elected to council.

Mike Young automatically holds the third seat for another year.

Fourth place finisher Ron McKenzie won the second seat, because he is already an alderman.

Ann Tarasoff and Joe Richards trailed.

The only other race for a regional district seat was in Central Saanich where Dave Hill defeated Frank Waring in a battle for the seat vacated by D. J. MacLaurin.

Waring is a sitting alderman with one year left on his term, Hill topped the aldermanic polls in Central Saanich.

In Oak Bay, Shirley Dowell was the only candidate and since she was re-elected to council, automatically goes to the regional board. She replaces John Goult who did not seek re-election.

Sidney will not decide its regional director until the by-election for mayor Dec. 11 caused by the mid-term resignation of Mayor Peter Malcolm. Malcolm is also the current regional director for Sidney.

In North Saanich, George Westwood was the only candidate. He topped the aldermanic polls so goes to the regional board replacing G. O. Cumpston who did not seek re-election.

Saanich's three seats and Esquimat's one seat on the board will all be contested next year.

None of the seven directors representing the non-incorporated electoral areas faced elections this year.

OBITUARIES BACKING EXPLOSION RUMORS

MOSCOW (AFP) — Obituary notices in the newspaper Soviet Estonia a ppear to confirm reports that an explosion or accident occurred in a Soviet Baltic port late last month.

Death notices have been published for about 30 persons between Oct. 26 and Nov. 16, giving the cause as "sudden death" — a phrase usually indicating a catastrophe or serious accident in the Soviet Union.

Ten of the victims came from a factory whose name and activities were not mentioned, six from the port of Tallinn in the Gulf of Finland and three from KGB security services in the port.

The rest were men who are believed to have been members of the Communist party or held government positions.

Soviet officials have refused to comment on a report by the Swedish daily newspaper Expressen, that a nuclear explosion occurred in a Soviet naval base in Estonia on Oct. 25, killing more than 40 persons.

Student Pilot Dies in Smash

CASTLEGAR (CP) — Peter Arthur Methum, a 24-year-old student pilot from Nelson, was killed Saturday in the crash of a light, single-engine plane between Nelson and Castlegar.

Police said he was practising solo flying and was the only person aboard the Cessna 173 when it crashed in mountainous terrain near Krestova. The plane was owned by Ad Astra Aviation of Castlegar.

RCMP and officials of the ministry of transport are investigating the crash. An inquest has been ordered but no date has been set.

DISAPPOINTING TURNOUT

Status Quo Shaken Up

At least partial dissatisfaction with the past performances of the core municipal councils, and willingness to test the mettle of political neophytes, were reflected in Saturday's civic elections.

Of the four municipalities, tent with the status quo by re- only Oak Bay appeared con- turning all three incumbents.

But four other office holders were tossed out — two in Saanich, one each in Victoria and Esquimalt — in what was a generally disappointing voter turnout.

One of the biggest surprises came in Saanich where a newcomer topped the polls and two incumbents were defeated.

John Mika, a legislative sessional staff researcher for the NDP, headed the polls with 4,651 votes. The defeated incumbents were Roy Wootten and Maurice Johnson.

Incumbent Mary Casilio held her seat, polling second with 4,601 votes. Also elected to council were Robert Cameron with 4,566 votes and Ian Cass with 3,570 votes. It was the second try for Cameron and Cass.

Following his defeat, Wootten said an "NDP election machine" helped Mika and Cameron get elected, contributing to his downfall.

Both said there was no organized NDP campaign. Mika said the only official support he received was a two-line insertion in the NDP's lower Island newsletter which asked NDP members to support him and school trustee candidate Carol Pickup.

Mika said today his first priority will be to make council more accessible to the people. He wants evening council meeting and publication of all agendas and minutes. Cameron said he wants to have citizens more involved with rezoning and will ask "a long hard second look" be taken on the Royal Roads housing project and the proposed Royal Oak industrial park.

Victory smiles light up John Mika and Mary Casilo

Cass said his priorities are to examine closely "the financial structure" and to ensure a high proportion of single-family homes remain.

Hubert Beyer received 3,414 votes. Following him were Wootten with 3,230 votes, Johnson with 2,673 votes, Jack Fry with 2,378 votes, Fichard Gauthier with 2,065 votes and Gordon Cowan with 825 votes.

A total of 8,796 residents voted out of 41,282 eligible voters, 388 registering Saturday at the polling stations — 21.3 per cent, compared to 40 per cent in 1975 when there was a mayoralty race and 14 per cent in 1974, a comparable year.

Victoria's recent decision to introduce biennial elections next year, in an effort to stimulate greater voter interest, seemed to be justified by Saturday's low 18.8 per cent poll — the smallest in 12 years.

Elected were two incumbents, Murray Glazier and John Hayes, together with two newcomers: Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labor Council, and car dealer Frank Carson.

The third incumbent, Bob Ellis, went down to defeat, philosophically explaining it with the comment that he maintains a low profile and doesn't go out seeking headlines.

Ryan is the first alderman on council with an organized-labor background since Mayor Alf Toone, who died in office in 1966 and was also secretary of the labor council.

During his campaign Ryan stressed the importance of preserving and expanding Victoria's industrial activity and the economy in general, because he argued that the city's fiscal health depends heavily on its employment base.

Today, he said that will be one of his priority tasks on council, and Ryan maintained that industry and the city's esthetic qualities need not be incompatible.

He said any upgrading of the city's less attractive areas must include the provision of alternative sites for dislocated industries.

"We must diversify as much as possible (in industrial-economic activity) but I am not suggesting this be done at the expense of the environment," he added.

Carson said many promises are made at elections but he sees the main task ahead as sorting out the priorities and placing a price tag on them.

That list should be made public, he said, because some candidates have been "pretending that we have open-ended cheque books."

Glazier, who topped the polls, attributed his success to his dogged hard work on council over the past two years, while Hayes said the result indicates residents support his stand on heritage preservation and rehabilitation of the Crystal Garden building.

But the surprise in Victoria was not so much who was elected, as what happened to the 31,000-plus voters who didn't vote at all.

In recent years, only the 1964 turnout of 18.6 per cent was lower than this year's poll.

A disappointed Syd Langhelt, president of the Fairfield Community Association, admitted he was expecting at least a 25 per cent poll.

In Oak Bay, re-elected alderman Shirley Dowell said voters turned out to oppose high education costs and any proposals to change existing single family home zoning.

She said she supported the five school board candidates who were elected and this view seemed to be shared by the majority of Oak Bay voters.

(The three losing candidates, who trustee Peter Bunn said advocated free-spending policies, trailed badly in Oak Bay polls. Without the Oak Bay vote, Carol Pickup would have had 7,989 votes to only 7,099 for stock salesman Peter Yorke and she would have been elected.)

Dowell said that, if the next school board budget is more than eight per cent above the previous one, she will present a motion that separate tax notices go out in Oak Bay for municipal taxes and school board taxes.

"Council is tired of taking all the flak for the school board budget."

Dowell said the three incumbents, herself, Douglas Watts and John Goult, easily defeated the only other candidate Jacquei Sellgren because Oak Bay is opposed to changes in the status quo on zoning.

University of Victoria professor Dr. Neil Swainson, an expert on municipal government, easily won election for a one-year term over John Buckley.

In Esquimalt, Barry Gilbert, who ran because he didn't want to see the three incumbents elected by acclamation, bumped off veteran Ald. Art Mebs.

Gilbert, a 39-year-old toolmaker, beat Mebs by 222 votes and won one of the three seats available.

He came in third behind incumbents Larry Mann and James McEvay who polled 1,377 and 1,278 respectively. Gilbert had 1,258 votes.

Mebs has served as an Esquimalt alderman for 10 years. He was defeated in 1973 but ran again successfully the following year.

Concern Over Taxes Reflected in Votes

Voters casting ballots for school trustees indicated their concern with rising school taxes when they elected three businessmen along with the two incumbents to the nine-member board.

Topping the polls was vice-chairman Susan Brice, closely followed by the only other incumbent, Dr. Mark Fisher.

Mimi Robertson who topped the polls in her home area of Esquimalt, ended up in eighth spot.

The three new trustees will replace chairman Bill Ross, Janet Baird and Roy Tem-le, all of whom have resigned.

Still sitting on the board with one-year remaining in their terms are Lavinia Janet Baird and Roy Temple, Peter Bunn and Hal Knight.

The three new members — Peter Dorazio, business manager for Victoria Press; Bud Smith, proprietor of Sprott Shaw business school, and Peter Yorke, manager of a stock brokerage firm — had all stressed fiscal responsibility in their campaigns.

Yorke narrowly won the seat over Carol Pickup, who ran unsuccessfully for the NDP in the last provincial election against Hugh Curtis in Saanich and the Islands, and John Young, businessman and former educator.

The election of Dorazio, Smith and Yorke will probably mean Mrs. Brice will be elected chairman of the board. As vice chairman, she usually aligned herself with trustees favoring spending restraints.

Young said he will run again next year. This was the second consecutive year he narrowly lost a seat. Last year he finished fifth in a 12-way race for four seats.

Mrs. Pickup said today she will try again next year.

Mrs. Robertson said it was too early to decide — that she hadn't had time to think about it.

In Saanich school district, Lois Walsh retained her North Saanich seat on the board by defeating challenger Gary Gibson. There are no changes on the seven-member board.

Three other trustees were returned by acclamation: Chairman Gerry Kristianson in Saanich, Norma Sealy in Sidney and Walter Tangye in Central Saanich.

They re-join Jack Armstrong, Harry Tobin and Rubymay Parrott, who have one year left on their terms.

In the Sooke school district newcomer Arlene Ward joined incumbent Irene Lane as they beat out four other candidates for the two positions in the Belmont zone.

Bonnie Fournier, Gwen Day, Jack Hannam and John Craggs trailed, in that order.

Chairman Horst Doniecki was unopposed nn the Milnes Landing zone for another two-year term.

Pauline Chamberlain, William Stevenson, Brian Killip and Noel Haas have one year remaining in their terms.

Mrs. Ward takes the place of Alan Littler, a former chairman and six-year board veteran, who did not run this year.

Two Seek Mayor's Seat In Sidney

A retired Air Canada engineer and a retired air force warrant officer will seek the mayor's chair in Sidney on Dec. 11.

Former alderman Dick Leigh, 62, and Eric Sherwood, 58, were the only candidates when nominations closed at noon today.

One of them will succeed Mayor Peter Malcolm who is leaving for a new job in Vancouver.

In addition, Sherwood, a television repairman, is running against Ald. James Lang, 63, a retired industrial commissioner, and Jerry Tregaskis, 33, a credit manager re-elected to council Saturday, for the Sidney directorship on Capital Regional District board.

Hunter Ballot Called Confusing

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria's all-in-one Hunter ballot should be changed because it's confusing and results in a number of spoiled votes, Ald. Bill Tindall said today.

Tindall said the ballot, combining candidates for city, school board and regional board, may have been appropriate even a few years ago but it now has obvious flaws and city council should ask staff to investigate voting systems used in other cities.

The Hunter ballot was copyrighted in 1928 by former city clerk Frank Hunter and has been used continuously by Victoria ever since.

But Tindall said the method of overlapping sheets all combined on the same ballot causes problems for many voters, who don't seem to realize that they are required to make their choice in three distinct election races.

Some mark the section for the regional board (which appears first on the ballot) but then do not vote for the aldermanic or school board candidates, he noted.

"The system appears utterly confusing to many," he said.

The alderman said he would like to see three completely distinct ballots for the three election components, with large easily-understood posters erected at all polling stations to explain exactly what is required of the voters.

As an example of the difficulties under the present system, he pointed out that two candidates — incumbent Bob Ellis and Bill McElroy — scored well in the regional race but didn't qualify for one of the two seats because they failed to win election to city council.

A lot of people are still very vague about what the regional board is and what it does, he believes.

Tindall had nothing but praise, however, for one innovation this year — the practice of allowing eligible but unregistered voters to register at the polls.

In Victoria, 284 voters took advantage of this opportunity on Saturday — 82 of the them at the main silver Threads polling station and 81 and 66

Butler Favors Community Plan

A new community plan and improvements in the water supply will be the new priorities in Central Saanich, re-elected Mayor Jean Butler said today.

She said the defeat of a referendum to provide funds for a recreation centre demonstrated that citizens in Central Saanich have other priorities.

"The people have spoke and I will abide by their wishes," she said.

Butler defeated challenger William Rogers, real estate company manager, after warning voters that the municipality already faced heavy expenditures over the next two years without adding the recreation centre costs to the tax bill.

She said she did not actively oppose the plan but merely outlined the expense involved.

Central Saanich voters rejected 1,115 to 920 a proposal to supply funds for a $1.85 million recreation centre along with North Saanich and Sidney. Now the other two municipalities will proceed with a scaled-down version costing about $1.3 million.

North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve and Sidney Mayor Peter Malcolm both expressed disappointment at the vote.

Malcolm said some candidates in Central Saanich used the referendum as a political issue to get re-elected.

Two challengers for council Gardo Gurr and Larry Scott, both favored the recreation centre and were defeated.

Ald. David Hill, who opposed the recreation centre, topped the polls in the aldermanic race.

In Sidney, Mayor Malcolm said his council has been weakened after Saturday's election results.

"I am keenly disappointed by the low calibre of candidates elected to council," he said.

"They tossed out a good man, Ald. Bob Wallace, and elected Bernard Ethier, whose knowledge of Sidney is zero to judge by his election statements. Ethier said in advance his only reason for running was to prevent acclamation and now he has been elected."

A low turnout of just over 800 voters elected incumbent Jerry Tregaskis along with newcomers Eleanor Sowerby and Ethier.

Malcolm said Sowerby was obivously inexperienced and not up to the calibre of many Sidney people who have been active in community affairs but who disappear at election time.

"It is a shame that capable and active people disappear into the woodwork when it is time to stand for public office."

"When I say Ethier and Sowerby are weak candidates, I mean compared with the man who was defeated (Wallace) and the others in Sidney who are very capable but did not choose to run."

He said Wallace was probably defeated by a heavy turnout of elderly voters opposed to his plan to let young people use the senior citizens hall when older people had gone home.

Malcolm said he could understand why senior citizens would be upset to have young people using their hall for dances and wild parties.

"Wallace is like that. He comes up with bad ideas from time to time but he comes up with hundreds of good ideas, too. He's what you could call a rapid-fire thinker. It was a shame he was defeated."

In North Saanich, retired naval officer George Westwood topped the polls in being re-elected to council. Voters rejected incumber Peter Tredgett and elected merchant Robert Thompson and farmer Owen Philp, who had run unsuccessfully for mayor in the previous election.

Moths Herald Trouble

Prevalence of ½-inch moths appearing to infest Greater Victoria this balmy fall is a reminder of defoliation to come next spring.

Adult moths flitting about will mate and females will climb fruit trees, hawthornes and other ornamentals to lay eggs that will hatch into Bruce span worms come May and June.

The span worm, recognizable by its peculiar looping action, has a healthy appetite for green leaves and can strip the first leaves from cherry or apple trees in a few days.

Dave Evans, of the federal forestry laboratory, suggests now is a good time to place tanglefoot bands around trees liable to be looper targets in the spring.

Females will become trapped in the sticky substance and be unable to lay their eggs in the upper branches.

Sticky bands are inexpensive and non-toxic — something like old-fashioned flypaper, "only stickier," Evans said.

Outpatients Get Reprieve

Memorial Pavilion outpatient department will remain open until mid-1977 instead of closing Dec. 31, Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel MacDonald announced on the weekend.

He said the extra time will allow veterans to be integrated into the normal patient care pattern at Royal Jublee Hospital

The decision to close the department resulted in the formation of the Victoria-based Veteran's Rights Association, which strongly opposed the move claiming treatment of veterans would deteriorate.

In a letter to Conservative veteran's affairs critic, Jack Marshall, MacDonald said: "The continuation is dependent on finding medical practitioners to staff the department; the hospital is optimistic this can be done.

"Once the integration has been completed, the outpatient department will be phased out, and this is now planned for June, 1977."

MacDonald added that the ambulatory care unit now under construction at the hospital will be available 24 hours a day for a more extensive service.

He said the current outpatient load is only one-third of what it was when the hospital was operated by the veterans' affairs department.

John Collins, president of the VRA called MacDonald's move a "victory of sorts."

But he added the association will keep pressing to obtain better facilities.

VRA executive director Peter Foy said the minister is still failing to come to grips with the real problem—putting a stop to the "erosion of veterans' rights."

In 1974, the pavilion became part of the Royal Jubilee and treatment programs for veterans began to be integrated with the operation of the regular hospital.

He Was the Noblest Roman of Them All

IMPERIAL ROME LEFT her strong reminders in Britain, among them Hadrian's Wall that once strode from coast to coast across the north of England. But the presence conjured up for me isn't that of some helmeted centurion on guard against the barbarians. Instead, I remember Jim Weir, a sturdy Northumbrian cab-driver who lives in the town of Hexham near The Wall.

The railway that follows the River Tyne inland from Newcastle brought us to Hexham on a morning that threatened rain.

We inquired our way to the County Hotel, a foursquare hostelry all a-bustle with preparations for a wedding reception. The innkeepers' wife spared time from her flower arrangements to check us into a double rest, which is to say a room for two.

We had come for a look at Hadrian's Wall and the Roman forts, Win explained. Were there tours?

Our hostess considered, a sheaf of red roses in hand.

The tour season was over. Too bad! And (with a glance through the windows) it wasn't much of a day to be tramping about the countryside. But if we really wanted to see the old Roman works, Ted Duncan or Jim Weir might take us out by taxi.

We waited by a coal fire in a spic-and-span parlor straight out of the coaching days. Presently we were summoned to the lobby, where a stocky man of middle age stood by a tall stand of blooms. He wore no-nonsense boots and a black rain jacket. His face had the country look imposed by wind and weather.

He was no guide, Jim Weir told us bluntly. The other driver, Ted Duncan who knew a lot about the ruins, was off duty. All he could do was run us out there for a look round. The rate was three pounds an hour.

Jim drove us briskly by narrow roads now wet with rain. They dipped and climbed with the roll of the fields.

"Go-by land," he told us once, with a nod at the rough grass that climbed a slope. "Most of it good for naught but sheep." And again, as our sunken road curved past a land-swell sparsely grown with trees, "Young chap with more troubles than he could carry hanged himself up there within year past."

It occurred to me as we ate the miles behind us that for a non-guide, Jim was imparting a fair bit about his North-of-England district.

"I expect we're following one of the Roman roads," he said. And the low hump off to our right, so minor that it had escaped my notice, was a trace of the wall itself — the garrisoned barrier that once stood between the Roman Britain and the raiding Picts and Scots of the north.

"My relatives," said Jim with a trace of a smile. "They were a wild lot. I've hear they kept the Romans busy."

We traded our road for a still narrower one. It ended in grassland. But there was more than the grass of the go-by to be seen.

Laid bare by the archeologists, stone joined to stone, were the complex groundworks of a fort planned by military engineers and built by soldier-artisans. This was Chesters, one of the strongpoints from which Rome maintained her authority on her northernmost frontier.

We had half-expected Jim Weir to stay snug in his cab. But he hopped spryly out and trudged along with us, explaining as we picked our way among the ruins.

Here were the granaries. Here the baths, their water warmed by central heating. Over there the barracks, and yonder the commandant's house.

Not as we saw it all now, Jim said, his rain-jacket collar hunched up around his ears and his chin tucked down against the drizzle, but everything spit-and-polish as it should be in the headquarters of a crack unit.

Cavalrymen . . . that's what they were at Chesters, and the best in supplies and equipment from the depot down at Corbridge none too good for them!

Later at Housesteads, he would show us another fort, and if my wife didn't mind a little scramble, she would get her chance to walk on Hadrian's Wall.

Our non-guide was doing rather well by us. He seemed to be enjoying himself in spite of the weather.

Win unslung her camera.

"Come on," I said to Jim. "Picture time. Suppose we make like a couple of legionaires heading for the wet canteen?"

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call:
